CHARACTER OPTIONS

Everything needed to build a character: ancestries and heritages, the six classes, backgrounds, the full feat catalogue, and equipment.

ANCESTRIES

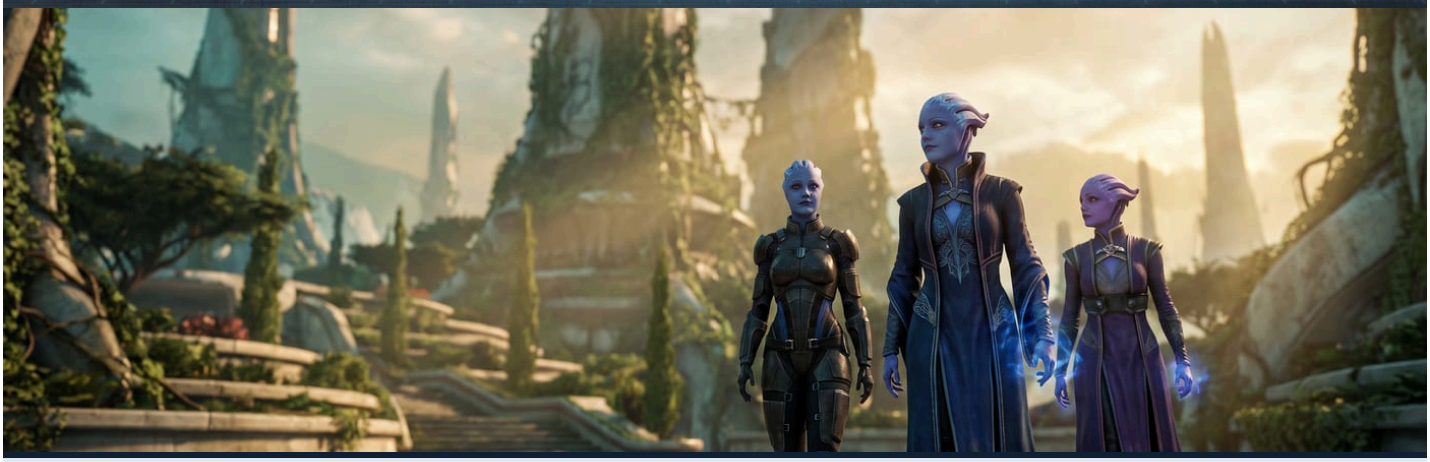

PLAYABLE SPECIES OF THE MILKY WAY

Your ancestry sets your starting Hit Points, size, Speed, attribute boosts and flaw, languages, and any special senses or biology. Choose one heritage at 1st level, then an ancestry feat at 1st level and every even level thereafter. Each species has its own page below, carrying its heritages and its full ancestry feat list.

ASARI

ANCESTRY

COMMON ASARI HUMANOID

> Among the most ancient and influential species in the known galaxy, the asari are a mono-gendered humanoid people from the planet Thessia, renowned for powerful biotic abilities, diplomatic wisdom, and lifespans exceeding a millennium.

Asari are tall, blue- or purple-skinned humanoids distinguished by their head crests-rigid, flexible fronds that replace hair. They pass through three life stages: the wandering Maiden, the settled Matron, and the elder Matriarch, whose centuries of experience command galaxy-wide respect. Their unique ability to neurally meld with any willing partner has made them natural diplomats, scholars, and warriors alike. Asari were instrumental in founding the Citadel Council and remain central to galactic politics.

YOU MIGHT...

- Approach conflict with measured words before resorting to biotics-unless pushed too far.
- Form deep, lasting bonds with companions of any species or biology.
- Find the short lifespans of other species simultaneously tragic and beautiful.

OTHERS PROBABLY...

- Assume you possess biotic powers and treat you with appropriate caution.
- Seek your perspective on long-term political or philosophical matters.
- Underestimate how lethal you are when you stop talking.

ASARI MECHANICS

Hit Points 8
Size Medium
Speed 25 feet
Attribute Boosts Charisma, Wisdom, Free
Attribute Flaw Strength
Languages Common, Thessian. You also gain 1 additional language, plus a number of languages equal to your Intelligence modifier (if positive), chosen from Batarian, Drell, Elcor, Hanar, Krogan, Khelish, Salarian, Turian, Volus, Vorcha.

LOW-LIGHT VISION
You can see in dim light as though it were bright light.

BIOTIC AFFINITY
Asari are born with the potential for biotic ability, arising from the unique interaction between their nervous system and element zero nodules accumulated before birth. Your biotic talent manifests as an innate command of mass effect fields.
You gain a Telekinetic Projectile biotic Strike with a range increment of 30 feet (maximum 60 feet) that deals 1d6 force damage. This Strike uses your Charisma modifier for the attack roll and is treated as an occult cantrip for the purpose of biotic power interactions.

MILLENNIAL LIFESPAN
Asari live for over a thousand years and accumulate a breadth of personal experience that shorter-lived species cannot match. You have personally witnessed historical events that others only read about, and your cultural memory is both a scholarly resource and a survival tool.
You gain a +1 circumstance bonus to Recall Knowledge checks about historical events, prominent figures, and past conflicts that occurred within the last 1,000 years. Additionally, you are immune to the sickened condition from natural aging and cannot be magically aged.

PHYSICAL DESCRIPTION

Asari stand 1.7 to 1.9 meters tall with lean, humanoid physiques and vivid skin tones from deep navy to light lavender. Their head crests are bony, flexible structures used for subtle emotional expression. Asari do not age visibly until their final centuries of life.

SOCIETY

Asari society on Thessia is guided by wisdom rather than strict hierarchy. Communities defer to elder Matriarchs whose centuries of experience carry great weight. Though commandos and justicars are feared across the galaxy, most asari prefer negotiation, commerce, and scholarship. Many spend decades exploring the galaxy before settling.

BELIEFS

Asari spiritual life centers on the goddess Athame and the Pillars of Strength, emphasizing growth, excellence, and connection between all living things. Most asari are thoughtful and flexible in outlook; extremes of rigid ideology are rare among a people who have centuries to change their minds.

SAMPLE NAMES

Liara, Samara, Aria, Benezia, Tevos, Nassana, Morinth, Aethyta, Shiala, Peregrina

ASARI HERITAGES

ARDAT-YAKSHI ASARI

You carry a rare neurological condition called Ardat-Yakshi-a mutation that causes your biotic nervous system to dominate and overwhelm the neural patterns of any partner during neural melding, causing rapid neurological damage and death. This makes you extraordinarily powerful as a biotic warrior; the same mechanism that kills during melding amplifies your mass effect field output to levels other asari cannot reach. Most Ardat-Yakshi are offered a choice by the Asari Republics: voluntary seclusion or service as a sanctioned operative. Some refuse both.

Your biotic attacks and innate biotic spells deal additional damage equal to half your level (minimum 1). However, you cannot safely neural meld with others-any attempt to do so forces the target to attempt a DC 20 Fortitude save or become stunned for 1 round and take 2d6 mental damage; on a critical failure, they become unconscious for 1 minute. This applies whether or not you intended harm.

COLONIST ASARI

You grew up not on Thessia but among the diverse populations of colony worlds, stations, or ships-immersed in other cultures from birth. Where Thessia-born asari sometimes view other species through the lens of a well-established civilization, you have always known them as neighbors, coworkers, and sometimes family. This cross-cultural upbringing has given you an ease in mixed-species environments that even other asari don't always possess.

You gain a +1 circumstance bonus to Society checks, and you can speak one additional language of your choice from the languages available to any of the ancestries in this compendium. You also gain the Additional Lore feat for a culture or region you grew up near, chosen at character creation.

COMMANDO ASARI

You were trained from a young age in the Asari Commandos-the elite warrior caste whose members combine biotic power with combat precision into a fighting style other species spend lifetimes failing to replicate. Asari commandos move through battle with a fluid efficiency that makes them among the most feared individual combatants in the galaxy.

You are trained in light and medium armor and gain access to the Quick Draw feat (or become trained in Acrobatics if you already have Quick Draw). Additionally, your biotic abilities (including those from ancestry features and feats) deal an additional 1 damage when used as attacks.

MATRIARCH'S LINEAGE ASARI

You are descended from one of the great Matriarch lineages-asari who lived long enough and deeply enough to become living repositories of galactic wisdom. The weight of that heritage has shaped how you carry yourself and how others respond to your presence. Even young asari of Matriarch lineage carry a gravity beyond their years.

You gain a +1 circumstance bonus to Diplomacy and Intimidation checks. Additionally, once per day you may use the Aid action as a free action (once per encounter) to assist an ally, representing your instinct for elevating those around you.

ASARI FEATS

Take one of these at 1st level and every even level thereafter, provided you meet its level requirement.

1ST LEVEL

MILLENNIA OF MEMORY

FEAT 1

ASARI

The asari lifespan spans centuries, and even a young asari carries a breadth of accumulated learning that most other species cannot match before middle age. You have been collecting knowledge for longer than some civilizations have existed in their current form, and it shows in the density of what you can pull up on demand.

You gain the Multilingual skill feat as a bonus feat. Additionally, once per day when you fail a Recall Knowledge check in a skill you are at least trained in, you can immediately attempt the same check again and use the better result, as a deeper layer of memory surfaces.

5TH LEVEL

BIOTIC FEEDBACK ↷

FEAT 5

ASARI FORCE

Trigger A creature hits you with a melee Strike.

Your nervous system responds to physical impact with an involuntary biotic discharge-an uncontrolled surge of mass effect field energy that radiates outward from the point of contact. You didn't choose to do this. It happens faster than conscious thought.

The creature that hit you takes 1d4 force damage (no save). At 9th level this increases to 2d4 force damage. At 17th level this increases to 3d4 force damage.

9TH LEVEL

MELDED UNDERSTANDING ↠

FEAT 9

ASARI MENTAL EXPLORATION

The asari neural meld is one of the most intimate forms of communication in the galaxy-a temporary merging of nervous systems that allows two beings to share thoughts, memories, and emotional states with a directness that language cannot approach. You have developed the ability to use a controlled, surface-level version of this connection.

You attempt a Diplomacy check against a willing or helpless creature within reach. The DC is 15 for a willing creature or the creature's Will DC for a helpless one.

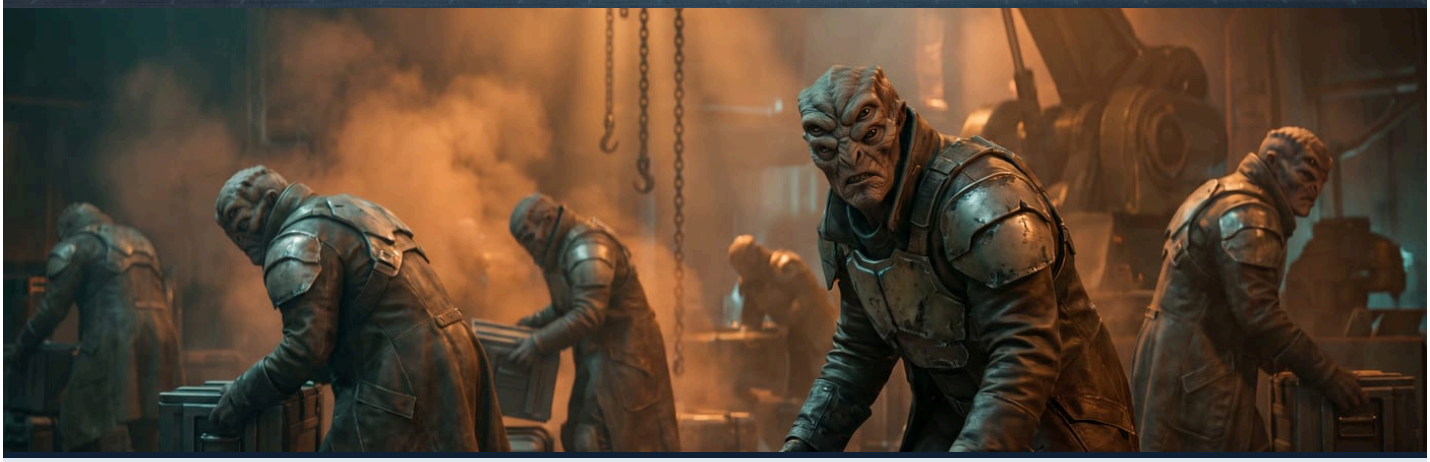

Critical Success You gain a clear, accurate sense of the creature's current emotional state, one significant memory or piece of information from the last 24 hours, and whether it is concealing something. The creature is temporarily immune to Melded Understanding for 24 hours.

Success You gain a general sense of the creature's emotional state and one surface-level impression or memory it is currently focused on.

Failure You gain no information. If the target was unwilling, you are stupefied 1 for 1 round from the failed connection.

BATARIAN

COMMON | BATARIAN | HUMANOID

> Marked by four eyes and a reputation shaped by their government's brutal history, batarians are a resilient and perceptive humanoid people whose individual worth is rarely reflected in how others see their species.

Batarians are powerfully built humanoids from the planet Khar'shan, immediately recognizable by their four eyes arranged in two pairs-a trait that grants superior visual acuity and peripheral awareness. The Batarian Hegemony's long history of slavery, piracy, and political aggression has poisoned relations with Citadel space, leaving most batarians encountered beyond Hegemony territory to be exiles, escaped slaves, or dissidents who have fled oppression. Individual batarians vary widely in morality and motivation; the cruel reputation of their species' government is not a fair measure of each person.

YOU MIGHT...

- Project confidence and physical intimidation even when uncertain inside.
- Resent being judged by the actions of the Hegemony rather than your own.
- Keep a watchful eye on everyone in the room-old survival habits die hard.

OTHERS PROBABLY...

- Assume you are affiliated with slavers, pirates, or the Hegemony until proven otherwise.
- Notice your four eyes and feel unsettled by your unwavering gaze.
- Underestimate the depth of your loyalty to the few people you trust.

BATARIAN MECHANICS

Hit Points 10
Size Medium
Speed 25 feet
Attribute Boosts Strength, Wisdom, Free
Attribute Flaw Charisma
Languages Common, Batarian. You also gain a number of additional languages equal to your Intelligence modifier (if positive), chosen from Thessian, Drell, Krogan, Salarian, Turian, Vorcha.

LOW-LIGHT VISION
You can see in dim light as though it were bright light.

FOUR EYES
Batarians possess two pairs of eyes: a larger upper pair for primary focus and a smaller lower pair providing wide-angle peripheral awareness. This dual-pair arrangement gives batarians exceptional situational vision that is difficult to circumvent through misdirection.
You gain a +1 circumstance bonus to Perception checks that rely on sight. Additionally, you cannot be flanked by a creature attacking from directly behind you alone-flanking still applies when enemies flank from your sides, but a single attacker directly behind you does not cause you to be off-guard.

HEGEMONY-BRED
Life under the Batarian Hegemony-whether as enforcer, slave, or dissident-hardens batarians against psychological pressure in ways other species rarely experience. Batarian culture's pervasive authoritarian control, propaganda, and systematic fear conditioning paradoxically builds exceptional mental resistance to external manipulation. You have been conditioned either to apply fear or to endure it, and likely both.
You gain a +1 circumstance bonus to saving throws against fear effects and mental effects (effects with the fear or mental trait).

PHYSICAL DESCRIPTION

Batarians stand 1.7 to 1.9 meters tall with broad, muscular builds and tough, brownish skin ranging from tan to dark brown. Their defining feature is their four eyes: the upper pair is larger and more prominent, while the lower pair is smaller but equally sharp. Their facial structure is broad and heavy-browed, and their voice is deep and resonant.

SOCIETY

Batarian society under the Hegemony is rigidly stratified by caste, with little social mobility and heavy government control. Outside the Hegemony, batarian communities are small and tight-knit, bound together by shared exile and mutual distrust of outsiders. Loyalty within such groups is absolute; betrayal is met with contempt or worse.

BELIEFS

Batarian religious tradition centers on a polytheistic faith emphasizing strength, cunning, and fate. Many batarians are pragmatic about religion, treating it as cultural identity rather than active devotion. Outlooks range widely: some are honor-bound and protective of the weak they once were; others carry the cruelty their oppressive culture instilled.

SAMPLE NAMES

Balak, Elnora, Solem, Hock, Eramius, Forta, Nassir, Korin, Yuel, Dorak

BATARIAN HERITAGES

ESCAPED SLAVE BATARIAN

You escaped from Hegemony slavery-an act requiring extraordinary courage, cunning, and luck. In doing so, you developed skills for moving unseen, surviving on almost nothing, reading the intentions of people who hold power over you, and making decisions fast when the window is small. You carry the knowledge of what was done to you and the determination that it will never happen again.

You become trained in Stealth and Survival. If you are already trained in both through your class or background, you instead gain a +1 circumstance bonus to Stealth and Survival checks. Additionally, you never become lost when you have seen the surrounding terrain before.

HEGEMONY SOLDIER BATARIAN

You served in the Batarian Hegemony's military or paramilitary forces, trained in the brutal and systematic combat doctrine that has kept the Hegemony's caste system in place for generations. Hegemony soldiers are not tacticians by default-they are shock troops, enforcers, and heavy-fire specialists who are expected to overwhelm opposition rather than outmaneuver it.

You are trained in medium armor and martial weapons. You gain a +1 circumstance bonus to Athletics checks made to Shove or Grapple.

MERCENARY BATARIAN

You've built a career selling your skills and your willingness to use them, operating across the grey zones of Terminus space where no one asks too many questions about what you did before you arrived. Batarian mercenaries have a reputation as reliable and brutal, and you've cultivated exactly that reputation to keep the work coming. You know how mercenary contracts work, which employers pay and which don't, and when a job has gone wrong before anyone else in the room catches on.

You become trained in Intimidation and gain the Mercenary Lore skill. You gain a +1 circumstance bonus to Perception checks to Sense Motive when assessing whether an employer or contact is being honest about a job's terms or risks.

TERMINUS PIRATE BATARIAN

You grew up raiding and running in Terminus space, part of the shadow economy of piracy and smuggling that the Batarian Hegemony has quietly sponsored for decades as a proxy against Alliance interests. Life on a pirate vessel is harsh and the margin for error is nonexistent-but you have developed an expert's instinct for target selection, quick entry and exit, and dealing with situations where everything has gone wrong at once.

You become trained in Thievery and gain a +1 circumstance bonus to Deception checks to deceive creatures about your intentions, cargo, or destination. You are also trained in one of the following: Piloting Lore, Smuggling Lore, or Underworld Lore.

BATARIAN FEATS

Take one of these at 1st level and every even level thereafter, provided you meet its level requirement.

1ST LEVEL

FOUR-EYED VIGILANCE

FEAT 1

BATARIAN

Four eyes cover a wider arc than two, and the batarian visual system is adapted to process that wider field of view without the attentional bottleneck that limits most binocular species. You are considerably harder to catch off-guard than your opponents generally expect.

You gain a +2 circumstance bonus to Perception checks to avoid being surprised and to detect creatures using Stealth. Creatures do not gain the flanking bonus to attack rolls against you when flanking from your sides-only from directly behind you. Additionally, you can't be flat-footed to creatures you can see.

5TH LEVEL

CASTES AND LEVERAGE

FEAT 5

BATARIAN

Batarian society is organized around a rigid caste system, and navigating that system has given you a finely tuned sense for social hierarchies of any kind-where the power sits, who defers to whom, who is resentful of that deference, and where the leverage points are. You have found that most species organize themselves in hierarchies that are not that different from the Hegemony's, once you strip away the cosmetic differences.

You gain a +1 circumstance bonus to Diplomacy and Intimidation checks against creatures who occupy a defined social or professional role (guards, officials, subordinates, commanders, servants). Once per day you can use Society to Sense Motive in place of Perception-rolling your Society check against the creature's Deception DC-to determine a creature's rank, authority level, or position within their organization.

Automation: Turn on the toggle when dealing with someone in a defined role; the +1 applies to Diplomacy and Intimidation.

DRELL

COMMON DRELL HUMANOID

Agile, sharp-eyed reptilian humanoids with perfect memories and adhesive fingertips, the drell carry both the weight of a dying world and the profound debt of a species saved.

Drell are lithe, reptilian humanoids who evolved in the arid deserts of Rakhana before their world was stripped bare by ecological collapse. Rescued from extinction by the hanar, the drell now live primarily aboard hanar vessels and stations, their small population bound to their saviors through a complex cultural institution called the Compact-an arrangement many drell honor willingly, though it shapes every aspect of their lives. Their most striking biological trait is eidetic memory: drell do not merely remember experiences, they relive them with full sensory detail, sometimes involuntarily. Extended exposure to humidity and the damp environments hanar prefer causes a fatal respiratory disease called Kepral's Syndrome in drell-a constant reminder that they belong to the dry places of the galaxy.

YOU MIGHT...

- Treasure memories as sacred things, treating each experience as something worth preserving perfectly.
- Maintain quiet, intense focus in dangerous situations-panic was a luxury your species could never afford.
- Navigate deep emotional currents beneath a composed exterior that rarely cracks.

OTHERS PROBABLY...

- Treat you with deep respect if they know about the Compact and what your people owe the hanar.
- Find your perfect recall either impressive or unsettling depending on what you've witnessed.
- Underestimate your speed and physical capability, expecting fragility from your lean frame.

DRELL MECHANICS

Hit Points 8
Size Medium
Speed 30 feet
Attribute Boosts Dexterity, Wisdom, Free
Attribute Flaw Constitution
Languages Common, Drell. You also gain a number of additional languages equal to your Intelligence modifier (if positive), chosen from Hanar, Thessian, Batarian, Krogan, Salarian, Turian.

EIDETIC MEMORY

Drell do not merely remember past experiences-they relive them. A drell's memory is a perfect, multi-sensory recording that can be accessed at will with complete fidelity. This extends to learned information, witnessed events, overheard conversations, and any experience significant enough to register. The gift is not without burden: in times of stress, vivid memory episodes called Harrowing can intrude unbidden. Once per hour, when you attempt a Recall Knowledge check, you may roll twice and use the better result. Additionally, you automatically succeed at checks to recall information you directly witnessed or experienced within the last year, with a GM-determined DC based on how obscure or significant the detail is to your character.

ADHESIVE SKIN

Drell evolved in rocky desert terrain and developed microscopic adhesive fibers in their fingertips and palms that allow them to cling to rough surfaces with minimal effort. This adaptation makes drell natural climbers, able to scale walls and ceilings that would defeat most bipedal species without equipment.

You gain a climb Speed of 15 feet. This Speed functions on any surface that is not perfectly smooth (glass, ice, or similar frictionless surfaces may still require an Athletics check at the GM's discretion).

PHYSICAL DESCRIPTION

Drell stand 1.6 to 1.8 meters tall with slender, muscular builds and smooth, scale-patterned skin in colors ranging from deep green to brown, grey, and black, often with contrasting lighter patterns. Their eyes are solid-color-gold, amber, or green-with no visible pupil. Their fingertips and palms bear microscopic adhesive fibers that allow them to cling to most surfaces.

SOCIETY

With fewer than a million drell remaining, their society exists largely within hanar space. Drell communities center on honoring both their cultural traditions and their obligations under the Compact. Family units are small; elders and storytellers hold elevated status. Many drell become hanar servants, priests, or assassins for hire-occupations the Compact provides structure for.

Beliefs

Drell worship a pantheon of gods associated with aspects of their desert home: wind, sun, stone, and shadow. Shedding was traditionally a sacred ritual. Philosophically, most drell believe in accepting one's role in the universe's design without complaint-a trait that makes them excellent at difficult duties others would refuse.

Sample Names

Thane, Kolyat, Feron, Irikah, Nara, Jellem, Osh, Vela, Drin, Talid

Drell Heritages

Desert Drell

Most drell live in hanar space, adapted to a life of environmental suits and enclosed ships. You came from one of the communities that maintained connections to Rakhana's desert traditions-or were raised in an arid environment that kept those ancient adaptations active. Drell from desert backgrounds are more physically robust, better hydrated by instinct, and significantly more resistant to the Kepral's Syndrome that threatens drell in high-humidity environments.

You gain resistance 5 to fire damage. You reduce the onset time of Kepral's Syndrome (or analogous humidity-related diseases) by half, and gain a +2 circumstance bonus to Fortitude saves against inhaled hazards and disease. Your Adhesive Skin ancestry feature also functions in moderate heat and dry conditions that would slow most creatures.

Hanar-Raised Drell

You were raised primarily within hanar communities and culture rather than among drell. The hanar reverence for the Enkindlers, their elaborate courtesy protocols, and their bioluminescent communication are as natural to you as breathing-or as natural as it gets for a species that can't breathe Kahje's atmosphere. You navigate hanar society with ease and carry the spiritual weight of Enkindler devotion in your daily outlook.

You learn the Hanar language if you don't already know it. You gain a +1 circumstance bonus to Diplomacy and Religion checks when interacting with hanar or subjects related to Enkindler (Prothean) lore. Additionally, you can produce simple bioluminescent signals using equipment available on most hanar vessels, gaining access to the Bioluminescent Speech ability in limited form even without hanar biology.

Shadow Drell

The drell's extraordinary physical capabilities-adhesive grip, fast reflexes, perfect memory, and a predator's patience-make them naturally suited for infiltration and assassination work. You were trained in exactly that tradition, likely as part of the Compact's shadow service or as an independent contractor who found the galaxy pays extremely well for someone who can get in, finish the job, and disappear. Your calm is not detachment. It is precision.

You become an expert in Stealth. You gain a +1 circumstance bonus to Athletics checks to Climb and to attack rolls made when you are hidden or undetected. Your Adhesive Skin feature allows you to remain motionless on vertical surfaces indefinitely without a check.

Drell Feats

Take one of these at 1st level and every even level thereafter, provided you meet its level requirement.

1ST LEVEL

PERFECT RECALL

DRELL

The drell eidetic memory is not a metaphor. You do not remember things the way most species do-as reconstructions assembled from fragments and inferences. You remember them as they were: complete, exact, and available on demand. A conversation from twenty years ago is as accessible as one from this morning. You have never misremembered anything in your life, which is both a gift and, occasionally, a burden you carry alone.

You gain a +2 circumstance bonus to all Recall Knowledge checks. Additionally, you automatically succeed at Recall Knowledge checks to remember events, conversations, or details that you personally witnessed, regardless of how long ago they occurred-your GM may still call for a check if the information has been deliberately obscured or if you were distracted at the time.

TOXIC TOUCH

DRELL

Drell skin produces a mild hallucinogenic compound that was originally an environmental adaptation-a chemical signal that could affect the behavior of Rakhana's native predators. In most drell it is present at low concentrations and has no practical effect on most species. In some individuals, however, the compound is potent enough to affect beings that make direct skin contact.

You gain a Venomous Touch unarmed Strike. This attack is in the brawling group and deals 1d4 poison damage. On a hit, the target must succeed at a Fortitude save (DC = 10 + your level + your Constitution modifier) or become sickened 1 (sickened 2 on a critical failure). On a critical hit, the sickened condition applies regardless of the save, and on a critical failure the target is additionally confused for 1 round.

5TH LEVEL

GHOST OF THE DESERT

DRELL

Rakhana before the resource collapse was a world of brutal heat, scarce water, and predators adapted to hunt across open ground. The drell who survived there were hunters first and prey second, and that relationship with concealment and stillness is written into the species at a level that training reinforces but doesn't create. You move like something that does not want to be found.

You gain a +2 circumstance bonus to Stealth checks when in arid, rocky, or open terrain. You can attempt to Hide and Sneak even without cover or concealment, though you take a -2 penalty to the check if there is nothing to obscure you. When you are Hiding or Sneaking, you can move at full Speed rather than the usual halved speed.

Automation: Turn on the toggle in arid, rocky, or open terrain; the +2 applies to Stealth.

ELCOR

UNCOMMON ELCOR HUMANOID

> Massive, patient quadrupeds from the high-gravity world of Dekuuna, the elcor communicate volumes through pheromones and subsonic tones that other species can barely detect-and have learned to state their emotional context aloud as a diplomatic accommodation to a galaxy that cannot hear them properly.

Elcor are large, four-limbed beings with wide, squat bodies built for the crushing gravity of their homeworld. They evolved as herd animals in Dekuuna's hostile plains, developing remarkable physical endurance, a strong group-survival instinct, and a complex chemical language of pheromones layered over subsonic vocalizations-a communication system nearly invisible to most other species. In galactic society, elcor have adopted the practice of verbally prefacing their statements with emotional context ("With great solemnity:", "Drily:") so that others understand the weight behind their slow, measured words. Despite their lumbering appearance, elcor are capable of devastating violence when roused; their size and strength should never be mistaken for harmlessness.

YOU MIGHT...

- Speak slowly and with great deliberation, having learned that rushing words in mixed company causes misunderstandings.
- Prefer stable, predictable situations-chaos is uncomfortable for a being whose culture prizes measured consensus.
- Carry yourself with the unhurried dignity of a species that does not fear being underestimated.

OTHERS PROBABLY...

- Initially find your verbal emotional cues amusing before realizing how much you are actually communicating.
- Mistake your slow pace for lack of intelligence or urgency, often to their regret.
- Unconsciously give you a wide berth in enclosed spaces-your presence is simply large.

ELCOR MECHANICS

Hit Points 12
Size Large
Speed 20 feet
Attribute Boosts Strength, Constitution, Free
Attribute Flaw Dexterity
Languages Common, Elcor. You also gain a number of additional languages equal to your Intelligence modifier (if positive), chosen from Batarian, Drell, Hanar, Krogan, Salarian, Turian, Volus.

LOW-LIGHT VISION

You can see in dim light as though it were bright light.

QUADRUPED STABILITY

Elcor evolved on the high-gravity world of Dekuuna walking on four massive limbs, giving them a physical foundation that is extraordinarily difficult to displace. Their wide stance and distributed mass make forced movement and knockdowns far less effective against them than against bipedal species.

You gain a +2 circumstance bonus to your Fortitude DC against Shove and Trip attempts, and to Fortitude saves against effects that would move you against your will or knock you prone. Whenever you would be pushed or pulled, reduce the distance by 5 feet (minimum 0).

Automation: The +2 applies to your Fortitude DC against Shove and Trip and to Fortitude saves against forced movement and being knocked prone.

PHEROMONE AWARENESS

Elcor evolved with a rich pheromone-based communication system that still functions as a constant environmental sensor. They detect chemical emotional signals from creatures around them even when those creatures are making no sound and showing no visible body language-an awareness that extends to their own emotional regulation.

You gain a +1 circumstance bonus to Will saving throws against emotion and fear effects (those with the emotion or fear trait). Additionally, you cannot be deceived by effects that fabricate emotional states through pheromones or chemical means, as you can detect the artificiality of manufactured scent.

PHYSICAL DESCRIPTION

Elcor stand roughly 2 meters tall at the shoulder, with four sturdy limbs used for locomotion and a large, rounded body covered in thick, dark grey to brown skin. Their faces are broad and heavy-featured, with large nostrils and small, deep-set eyes. They cannot move quickly but their mass and natural armor make them formidable in a stand. Elcor have 10-foot reach with their forelimbs.

Society

Elcor society on Dekuuna is organized around tight-knit family herds led by elder consensus. Decision-making is slow, thorough, and near-unanimous before action is taken-a trait that frustrates faster-moving species but produces remarkably stable governance. Elcor place enormous value on tradition and are deeply uncomfortable with rapid change.

Beliefs

Elcor spiritual traditions emphasize patience, communal harmony, and reverence for their homeworld's harsh environment as a teacher. Most elcor tend toward law and good, valuing stability and the protection of the herd above individual ambition. Chaotic or self-centered philosophies are culturally aberrant.

Sample Names

Petozi, Calyn, Xeltan, Olorm, Drevyn, Harrot, Lukar, Marab, Sofora, Tandril

Elcor Heritages

Diplomat Elcor

Elcor diplomats spend lifetimes learning to bridge the vast communication gap between their pheromone-and-subsonic native language and the sonic speech and body language that other species rely on. The discipline required to translate emotional subtext into explicit verbal context, while simultaneously managing interspecies protocol, produces elcor diplomats of extraordinary patience and social precision.

You become trained in Diplomacy and two additional languages of your choice from among those available to ancestries in this compendium. Your explicit verbal emotional prefacing ("With great sincerity:", "Calmly:") grants you a +1 circumstance bonus to Diplomacy checks to Make an Impression, as your interlocutors always understand exactly what weight you intend behind your words.

Rugged Elcor

You are from Dekuuna's highlands or one of the herd communities that spent generations in the harshest parts of the planet's high-gravity plains. Your body has adapted to punishment at a level beyond even the elcor baseline-denser plate, thicker hide, a cardiovascular system built for sustained effort under Dekuuna's crushing gravity. Even for an elcor, you are difficult to hurt and harder to stop.

You gain 2 additional Hit Points per level (in addition to your ancestry's base HP). You gain resistance 2 to bludgeoning and piercing damage from your thickened plating.

Warrior Caste Elcor

Elcor warriors are a sobering reminder that slow does not mean harmless. Warrior caste elcor are trained to carry heavy weapons mounted to their dorsal harness-a rig that turns them into walking artillery platforms-and to use their massive frame as a battering ram when the situation calls for direct contact. You are from that tradition, and you have internalized the fundamental truth that size and patience together are almost always enough.

You gain a natural unarmed attack that deals 1d8 bludgeoning damage and has the Shove trait. You can wield heavy weapons without the normal penalties for being a quadruped, provided the weapon is mounted or braced on your body. You gain a +2 circumstance bonus to Bulk limits.

Automation: The slam appears among your Strikes, and your Bulk limits rise by 2.

Elcor Feats

Take one of these at 1st level and every even level thereafter, provided you meet its level requirement.

1ST LEVEL

CRUSHING BLOW

FEAT 1

ELCOR

An elcor in motion is a significant mass traveling at meaningful velocity. Most elcor are too measured in their movements to use this casually, but you have learned-or perhaps simply remembered from instinct-how to put the full weight of your body into a strike. The results are difficult to argue with.

You gain a Crushing Blow unarmed Strike. This attack is in the brawling group, uses your Strength modifier to hit, and deals 2d6 bludgeoning damage. On a hit, the target must succeed at a Fortitude save (DC = 10 + your level + your Strength modifier) or be pushed 5 feet (10 feet on a critical failure). This attack has the forceful trait.

5TH LEVEL

SUBVOCAL NETWORK ❖

FEAT 5

ELCOR AUDITORY MENTAL

Elcor communication runs on two simultaneous channels: the explicit verbal layer that other species hear, and the subvocal emotional layer that conveys the tone, context, and intensity of what is being said. You have developed the ability to use the subvocal channel deliberately-projecting a specific emotional state to allies who know to listen for it, or saturating your immediate environment with emotional signals that are difficult to consciously process but impossible to ignore.

Choose one of the following emotional signals to broadcast until the start of your next turn. This is a mental, auditory effect.

- Calm: Allies within 30 feet gain a +1 circumstance bonus to saves against fear effects.
- Alert: Allies within 30 feet who can hear you are not flat-footed during their first turn of an encounter if they would otherwise be surprised.
- Urgent: One ally within 30 feet can immediately Step or Stand as a free action on their next turn.

HANAR

UNCOMMON AMPHIBIOUS HANAR

> Luminous, multi-tendriled beings of extraordinary politeness and deep spiritual devotion, the hanar are one of the galaxy's most unusual sapient species-communicating in light rather than sound, and revering an extinct civilization as gods.

Hanar are large, jellyfish-like beings from the ocean world of Kahje, the surface of which is covered almost entirely by ocean. Their bodies are composed of a translucent main mass trailing dozens of tendrils used for both locomotion and manipulation. Unable to support their own weight in standard gravity, hanar use mass effect fields to hover and move-a technology they developed early and rely upon absolutely. Their primary communication mode is a complex bioluminescent language of shifting colors and patterns across their bodies, though all hanar capable of interspecies interaction learn to produce sonic speech through a secondary vocal organ. Hanar deeply venerate the Protheans, whom they call the Enkindlers, believing them to be divine beings who gifted sapience to the hanar ancestor species.

YOU MIGHT...

- Express yourself with extreme courtesy-hanar culture considers direct statements rude and considers "this one" a more proper self-reference than "I."
- Hold strong spiritual convictions about the Enkindlers that inform your worldview without becoming domineering.
- Use your bioluminescence for subtle communication others in the room cannot decode.

OTHERS PROBABLY...

- Struggle initially to read your emotional state from body language when your expressions are all in color frequencies they can barely see.
- Be charmed by your elaborate courtesy before realizing how firm your positions actually are beneath the politeness.
- Underestimate your physical capacity in combat-a hanar's tendrils are stronger than they appear.

Languages Common, Hanar. You also gain a number of additional languages equal to your Intelligence modifier (if positive), chosen from Drell, Thessian, Batarian, Elcor, Salarian, Turian, Volus.

BIOLUMINESCENT SPEECH

Hanar communicate their true language through complex bioluminescent patterns that shift across their bodies-a language of color, pattern, and rhythm that carries meaning invisible to most other species without specialized equipment. While hanar also learn to produce sonic speech for interspecies communication, their bioluminescent capacity remains an always-available secondary channel. You can communicate complex messages to any creature that can see you and understands Hanar, without making any sound. Any creature within 60 feet that can see you and understands Hanar receives your bioluminescent communication perfectly, regardless of ambient noise. Additionally, you can produce simple signals-a rapid flash to indicate danger, a specific color to convey approval or refusal-that any creature within 60 feet can see, though interpreting them without Hanar knowledge requires a DC 15 Society check.

MULTITENTACLED

Hanar bodies trail dozens of tendrils, of which several are sufficiently strong and dexterous for complex manipulation. Unlike species with only two manipulating limbs, hanar can hold, carry, and use multiple items simultaneously without the constraint that limits most bipedal beings. You can hold and use up to 4 items simultaneously (rather than the usual 2 for a creature with 2 hands). Switching which items you are actively using is a free action. Additionally, you gain a +1 circumstance bonus to Athletics checks to Grapple due to the difficulty of escaping a creature with dozens of flexible tendrils.

PHYSICAL DESCRIPTION

Hanar bodies are 1.5 to 2 meters across their main mass, luminous and translucent, with dozens of trailing tendrils ranging in length from short to over a meter. Their coloration shifts continuously between blues, violets, and greens in patterns meaningful to other hanar. They hover 0.5 to 1 meter off the ground via mass effect fields and move with a floating, deliberate grace. In water they are considerably faster and more agile.

SOCIETY

Hanar society is built around elaborate courtesy, caste traditions, and the veneration of the Enkindlers. Their government is theocratic in structure, with religious figures holding significant authority. The Compact with the drell-a mutual aid arrangement in which drell serve hanar needs in return for being rescued from extinction-is both central to their culture and occasionally a source of external criticism.

BELIEFS

Hanar are deeply spiritual, worshipping the Enkindlers (Protheans) as divine. Their religion emphasizes service, gratitude, and the sacred nature of connections between species. Most hanar are lawful in temperament, valuing their extensive social protocols. Acts of selfless service are considered among the highest virtues.

SAMPLE NAMES

Hanar rarely share their true names with non-hanar; they use "face names" for outsiders. Face names: Blasto, Mere, Opold, Zymandis, Jahleed, Chorban, Sekat, Inamorda

HANAR HERITAGES

DEEP-SEA HANAR

Most hanar encountered in the wider galaxy have adapted to environments designed for other species-controlled atmospheres, space stations, and sealed habitats that simulate comfortable conditions. You came from one of Kahje's deep-ocean communities where hanar live in their element, moving through crushing pressure and complete darkness with the ease of creatures evolved for exactly that environment. In open water, you are something to be feared.

You gain a swim Speed of 40 feet (instead of the base 20). You are immune to pressure-related hazards up to 3 miles of depth. You gain darkvision for underwater environments. Your Multitentacled ancestry feature grants a +2 circumstance bonus to Grapple (rather than +1) when you are in water.

EMISSARY HANAR

You were trained as a formal emissary-a hanar chosen to interface with non-hanar species and serve as a bridge between the hanar's deeply protocol-driven society and the chaotic variety of the wider galaxy. Emissaries undergo extensive study of other species' body language, social conventions, and conversational priorities, learning to compress hanar elaborate courtesy into forms that won't exhaust their counterparts in a short meeting.

You become trained in Diplomacy and one additional language of your choice. You gain a +2 circumstance bonus to Diplomacy checks to Make an Impression with non-hanar, as you have perfected the art of making interspecies interactions comfortable and productive.

ENKINDLER-DEVOTED HANAR

Your family belongs to the most devout current of hanar religious practice, and the Enkindlers-the Protheans who the hanar believe gifted them sapience-are not simply history to you. They are sacred. You have spent years studying the Prothean ruins on Kahje, learning everything that can be learned about the beings your people revere, and carrying that knowledge as a practical tool as much as a spiritual one.

You become trained in Religion and Prothean Lore. You can identify Prothean technology and writings with a successful DC 15 Recall Knowledge check (with a +2 circumstance bonus from devoted study). Once per day, you may use a Focus Point (which you gain from this heritage) to enter a state of Enkindler Meditation, gaining a +1 status bonus to all saving throws for 1 minute as your faith steadies you.

HANAR FEATS

Take one of these at 1st level and every even level thereafter, provided you meet its level requirement.

1ST LEVEL

ENKINDLER'S GRACE ❖

FEAT 1

HANAR MENTAL VISUAL

The hanar relationship with the Enkindlers-the Protheans, who uplifted the hanar-carries a weight that most religious traditions cannot match. The Enkindlers were real. Their works are real. The blessings the hanar invoke in their name carry genuine conviction, and that conviction has a way of transmitting itself to those nearby. Whether the grace is divine, psychological, or simply the effect of absolute certainty delivered by something genuinely alien is a question you have stopped asking.

You extend a blessing to one ally within 30 feet who can perceive you. Until the end of your ally's next turn, they gain a +1 circumstance bonus to attack rolls and saving throws. If the ally is at fewer than half their maximum Hit Points, they also gain temporary Hit Points equal to your Charisma modifier (minimum 1). You can use this ability a number of times per day equal to your Charisma modifier (minimum 1).

5TH LEVEL

BIOLUMINESCENT DISPLAY ❖❖

FEAT 5

HANAR LIGHT VISUAL

Hanar bioluminescence evolved for communication, but the same chromatic cells that produce conversational flickers can be driven into something else entirely: a full-body strobing cascade of color and light that bypasses conscious processing and hits the visual cortex directly. It is not communication. It is something older than language.

You produce a disorienting bioluminescent display. Each sighted creature in a 20-foot cone must succeed at a Will save (DC = 10 + your level + your Charisma modifier) or become dazzled for 1 minute (stunned 1 on a critical failure, lasting until the end of their next turn). Creatures that critically succeed are immune to Bioluminescent Display for 24 hours. Creatures that cannot see are unaffected. After using this ability, you become concealed until the start of your next turn from the afterimage you leave in observers' vision.

HUMAN

ANCESTRY

COMMON HUMAN HUMANOID

> Ambitious, adaptable, and driven by an exceptional hunger to expand and excel, humans rose from a single world to galactic prominence in an eyeblink of cosmic time-and show no signs of slowing down.

Humanity made first contact with the wider galaxy only twenty-six years before the Eden Prime War, yet has already secured a seat on the Citadel Council, founded the Systems Alliance as a unified interstellar government, and spread across dozens of colony worlds. Other species find this pace alarming, admirable, or both. Humans are physically unremarkable compared to many galactic species-no natural biotics, no extraordinary senses, no unusual physiology-but their sheer variety of thought, their willingness to take risks, and their rapid institutional learning have made them a force that no one in the galaxy can afford to ignore. Humans serve as soldiers, diplomats, scientists, merchants, and criminals in roughly equal measure, adapting to whatever role the situation demands.

YOU MIGHT...

- Set ambitious goals that others find impractical-then actually accomplish them through sheer determination.
- Approach problems from unconventional angles that centuries-old species hadn't considered.
- Take personal relationships seriously across species lines, forming bonds that cross cultural divides.

OTHERS PROBABLY...

- View you as either a refreshing wildcard or a dangerously unpredictable variable in their plans.
- Underestimate how much you've already learned about their species and culture before this conversation.
- Remain unsure whether humanity's rapid ascent is admirable or threatening-possibly both.

PHYSICAL DESCRIPTION

Humans are medium-sized bipedal mammals with enormous variety in build, skin tone, hair, and eye color. They live roughly 80-120 years naturally, though advanced medicine has pushed the upper range in the 22nd century. They have no natural weapons, no unusual senses, and no innate biotic ability-only the capabilities they build, earn, or learn.

SOCIETY

The Systems Alliance serves as humanity's unified political and military voice to the galaxy, though individual human colonies vary enormously in culture, law, and tradition. Human civilization spans a spectrum from gleaming Core Worlds to wild Terminus colonies operating almost entirely outside Alliance law. This variation means that no two humans are likely to represent their species the same way.

Attribute Boosts Two Free
Attribute Flaw —
Languages Common. You also gain 1 additional language, plus a number of languages equal to your Intelligence modifier (if positive), chosen from .

AMBITIOUS STRIVING

Humanity's defining characteristic across galactic history has been an almost unreasonable drive to learn, improve, and exceed expectations-including their own. In the span of a single generation, humans went from their first steps into space to a seat on the Citadel Council. That same drive is present in every human, expressed as an insatiable hunger to be good at something that matters to them.
You become trained in one additional skill of your choice.

ADAPTIVE RESILIENCE

Humanity's rapid rise across the stars was built as much on the ability to absorb setbacks and adapt as on any special talent. Humans survive disasters that should have ended their ambitions and emerge recalibrating rather than broken. This resilience is both cultural and deeply personal-a stubbornness at the core of the species that refuses to accept permanent defeat.
Once per day, when you would critically fail a saving throw, you can reduce the result to a regular failure instead.

BELIEFS

Humans follow an enormous variety of religious, spiritual, and philosophical traditions reflecting their diverse origin cultures. No single belief system dominates. Individual worldviews run the full ethical spectrum; the only constant is that humans rarely agree on anything for long.

SAMPLE NAMES

Shepard, Anderson, Lizbeth, Ashley, Kaidan, David, Cerberus, Miranda, Jacob, Jack, James, Hannah, Steven, Samantha, Garrus (human name: Garrus Vakarian is turian, but culturally adopted names vary widely)

HUMAN HERITAGES

ALLIANCE BIOTIC HUMAN

You were exposed to element zero in utero and survived the process with functional biotic nodules rather than neurological damage-a rare outcome that the Alliance immediately identified, tracked, and eventually recruited. Human biotics are a relatively new phenomenon and the technology for harnessing them has been rushed, meaning your implants have been upgraded and adjusted multiple times. The process has left you with real power and a complicated relationship with the program that shaped you.

You can cast telekinetic projectile as an occult innate cantrip, using Charisma as your spellcasting ability. Additionally, you gain access to the Biotic Adept ancestry feat (see ancestry feats) without meeting its normal prerequisites.

COLONIST HUMAN

You grew up on one of humanity's colony worlds-distant from Earth and the Core, built on grit and determination, often under skies that weren't the right color and gravity that never felt quite right. Colony life teaches adaptability, self-reliance, and a particular hostility toward the idea that anyone from the Core gets to tell you what your life is worth. You know how to live off limited resources, fix what you have, and trust your neighbors when there's nothing else.

You become trained in Survival and Nature. You gain a +1 circumstance bonus to Fortitude saves against environmental hazards and diseases. You are trained in one Lore skill related to your colony world's terrain type (Desert Lore, Arctic Lore, Jungle Lore, etc.), chosen at character creation.

SYSTEMS ALLIANCE HUMAN

You served in or grew up deeply embedded with the Systems Alliance-humanity's unified military and political arm to the galaxy. Alliance culture prizes adaptability, determination, and the ability to do more with less, and those values are bone-deep in you. Whether you were a soldier, engineer, pilot, or civilian contractor, the Alliance shaped you into someone who knows how to function under pressure and how to work with a team that might not like each other but has to perform anyway.

You become trained in Athletics and gain the Systems Alliance Lore skill. You gain proficiency with light armor and simple weapons. Once per day you can Shrug It Off as a free action when you would become frightened 1 or 2, reducing the value by 1.

TERMINUS HUMAN

You grew up in Terminus space, outside Alliance jurisdiction and far beyond the reach of anything resembling consistent law. Terminus colonies are places where people go when they want to disappear or start over, and where survival depends on reading people fast, keeping your head down when it needs to be down, and having contingency plans for when plans fail. You've been making do your entire life and you're very good at it.

You become trained in Thievery and Deception. You gain a +1 circumstance bonus to Deception checks to Lie and to Stealth checks to Avoid Notice. You are never caught flat-footed in your first round of combat against creatures you haven't been formally introduced to.

HUMAN FEATS

Take one of these at 1st level and every even level thereafter, provided you meet its level requirement.

1ST LEVEL

ADAPTIVE LEARNER

FEAT 1

HUMAN

Humans do not have the longest lifespans, the most efficient minds, or the best physical equipment. What they have is an unusual capacity to learn across domains-to pick up skills that evolution never prepared them for and develop competence in areas that the species has only been exposed to for a generation. Where other species often excel within a defined area of specialization, humans accumulate breadth. This is, depending on your perspective, either their greatest strength or evidence that they cannot commit to anything.

You gain one additional skill in which you are trained (your choice). Additionally, when you receive a critical success on a check to learn a new skill or when you attempt a downtime activity to Earn Income using a skill, you gain a +1 circumstance bonus to your next check using that same skill within 24 hours.

TENACIOUS SURVIVOR

FEAT 1

HUMAN

Humanity's rapid expansion into the galaxy happened faster than most species thought was biologically possible, and the humans who survived the early colonial period were selected hard for a very specific trait: the refusal to stop. This is not mere stubbornness. It is a deep, physiological drive toward continued function even in conditions that would have convinced a more rational organism to quit.

You reduce your dying condition by 1 at the end of each of your turns (in addition to normal recovery), meaning you naturally stabilize faster. You gain a +1 circumstance bonus to recovery checks (the d20 roll to avoid dying when at dying 1+). When you succeed at a recovery check, you can immediately attempt a DC 15 flat check; if you succeed, you lose the unconscious condition and are at 0 Hit Points rather than needing to wait for a heal.

5TH LEVEL

BATTLE-HARDENED

FEAT 5

HUMAN

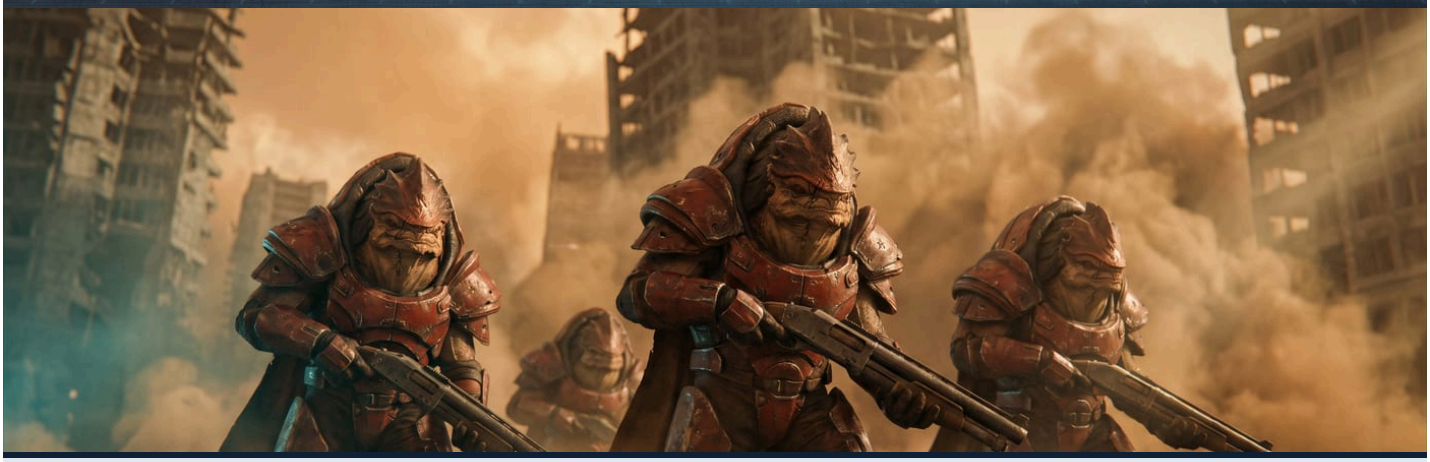

Human military and colonial history in the three decades since first contact has been dense with the kind of experience that leaves a mark-the Relay 314 Incident, the colonial attacks, the constant pressure of operating in a galaxy full of species that had millennia of head start. Those who survived adapted. You carry that adaptation in the way you handle damage that would stop someone who hadn't learned what you have.

When you would gain persistent damage, you attempt a DC 15 flat check to avoid gaining it; on a success, the persistent damage is negated entirely. You gain a +1 circumstance bonus to the flat check to end persistent damage at the end of your turn. Additionally, you gain a +1 circumstance bonus to Fortitude saves against effects that would cause you to be sickened or drained.

Automation: The +1 applies to Fortitude saves against sickened and drained. The flat checks against persistent damage are rolled by hand.

KROGAN

COMMON HUMANOID KROGAN

> Massive, biologically redundant warriors bred by eons of violent evolution on a dying world, the krogan are a species that survived extinction once through sheer biological stubbornness-and are now surviving it again through sheer will.

Krogan evolved on Tuchanka, a world devastated by nuclear warfare before they even reached the stars. Their biology is an answer to that environment: two hearts, a secondary nervous system, a distributed circulatory system, thick-plated hump of blood-stored nutrients, and a cellular regeneration rate that makes killing them a significant project. The Salarian Union uplifted the krogan during the Rachni Wars, using their numbers and aggression to win a war the Council races couldn't survive alone-then, terrified by the resulting population explosion, introduced the genophage: a biological weapon that renders 999 of every 1,000 krogan births non-viable. Krogan society is therefore caught between their evolutionary legacy of violence and aggression, a cultural drive to restore their people, and the simmering fury of a species that knows what was done to them.

YOU MIGHT...

- Approach every challenge expecting the worst-and prepare accordingly.
- Earn loyalty slowly and guard it fiercely; betrayal is not forgiven.
- Find younger species' political maneuvering exhausting when a direct solution is obviously available.

OTHERS PROBABLY...

- Give you significant physical space and choose their words carefully.
- Underestimate your strategic intelligence, expecting only aggression.
- Find themselves surprised by the depth of the loyalty you show toward those who've genuinely earned it.

DARKVISION

You can see in dim light as though it were bright light, and in darkness as though it were dim light (in black and white only).

KROGAN FORTITUDE

Krogan biology is designed to keep functioning long after other species would be dead. Their distributed circulatory and nervous systems, multi-chambered hearts, and accelerated cellular repair make them extraordinarily difficult to bring down through conventional injury. Wounds that would cripple a human or turian are inconveniences to a krogan with time to breathe.

You gain fast healing 1: at the start of each of your turns, if you are below half your maximum Hit Points, you recover 1 Hit Point. This healing does not function if you are at 0 HP.

REDUNDANT BIOLOGY

Krogan evolved with two hearts, a secondary nervous system, and multiple backup biological systems that can compensate when primary systems fail. A killing blow that should end a krogan may instead find itself absorbed by redundant organ capacity that another species simply does not possess. Krogan have literally walked away from injuries that killed everything around them.

Once per day, when a physical attack would reduce you to 0 Hit Points, you can attempt a DC 15 Fortitude save. On a success, you are instead reduced to 1 Hit Point and are not knocked out or dying from that attack. You can only benefit from this ability while you are not dying.

PHYSICAL DESCRIPTION

Krogan are massive bipeds standing 2.1 to 2.4 meters tall with broad, powerful builds, thick layered plate-like skin, and a large dorsal hump of stored nutrients and blood-processing capacity. Their four eyes provide wide-angle vision. Krogan regenerate from injury rapidly and can survive wounds that would kill most other species outright. They live for centuries if not killed violently-which most are.

SOCIETY

Krogan society on Tuchanka is organized into clans, each led by a powerful warrior called a Clan Leader or, in the most powerful cases, a Paramount. The genophage has fractured krogan culture, driving some clans toward increasingly desperate violence and others toward the grim pragmatism of survival. Clan Urdnot has emerged as a dominant voice pushing for krogan unity in recent decades.

BELIEFS

Krogan spirituality is tied to Tuchanka itself-ancestral spirits called the Shaman's Voices, the harsh world they came from, and the belief that a krogan who dies without honor brings shame on their bloodline. Most krogan lean toward pragmatic self-interest and their clan's interests; abstract goodness is respected but rarely a primary motivation. Their cultural alignment has shifted significantly depending on circumstances.

SAMPLE NAMES

Wrex, Grunt, Wreav, Urdnot, Drau, Charr, Gatatog, Maleon, Korlack, Uvenk, Skarr

KROGAN HERITAGES

EXILED KROGAN

You have no clan-cast out, disgraced, or simply orphaned by war in a culture that has no space for those without allegiance. Clanless krogan in Tuchanka's society are targets, prey for anyone who wants to prove themselves. But you survived anyway, and that survival has produced something that most krogan with the security of a clan never develop: genuine self-reliance and the ability to read any situation without the lens of clan loyalty coloring your judgment.

You become trained in Survival and Stealth. You gain a +2 circumstance bonus to saving throws against effects that would cause you to be Controlled (the controller trait) or forced to act against your own interests. You do not require clan membership or organizational backing to take leadership roles with strangers-your reputation stands on its own.

KROGAN SHAMAN

Krogan shamans preserve the oral traditions, spiritual practices, and historical memory of their clans at a time when that memory is an endangered resource. They tend to the females who carry the crushing weight of the genophage, maintain connections to Tuchanka's ancestral spirits, and provide a counterweight to the culture of pure aggression that otherwise dominates krogan society. It takes a particular kind of strength to be the one who remembers what everyone else has decided doesn't matter anymore.

You become trained in Religion and Medicine. You can cast stabilize and guidance as occult innate cantrips, using Wisdom as your spellcasting ability. Once per day you can cast heal as a 1st-rank innate occult spell.

TANK-BRED KROGAN

You were not born naturally but grown from a carefully curated genetic sequence in a breeding tank-a practice developed specifically to work around the genophage by producing viable krogan through controlled genetic manipulation rather than natural reproduction. Tank-bred krogan are selected for specific traits and raised in accelerated developmental programs, which makes them exceptional physical specimens but sometimes leaves them with a complicated relationship to krogan cultural identity and what it means to be one of your people.

You gain 2 additional maximum Hit Points (above your ancestry HP). Your Redundant Biology ancestry feature's DC is 13 instead of 15. You gain a +1 circumstance bonus to Fortitude saves against the genophage or biologically-targeted effects specifically targeting krogan physiology.

URDNOT WARRIOR KROGAN

Clan Urdnot has risen to prominence by producing krogan who fight with discipline rather than just rage-the most dangerous kind of krogan there is. Urdnot warriors are trained to use their biology as a weapon system: take the hit, regenerate, hit back harder. You embody that ethos. You don't dodge if you don't have to. You don't retreat if you can take what's coming. You use what you are.

You gain a +1 circumstance bonus to attack rolls while you are below half your maximum Hit Points. This reflects the krogan combat trance that kicks in when things get serious. Additionally, once per encounter when you hit with a melee Strike, you can attempt to Shove the target as a free action.

KROGAN FEATS

Take one of these at 1st level and every even level thereafter, provided you meet its level requirement.

1ST LEVEL

HEADBUTT

KROGAN

The krogan cranial ridge is a structural feature that serves multiple purposes: it protects the brain from impacts that would kill most species outright, it is a display indicator of age and status, and in a combat situation, it is a weapon. Striking with the crest delivers the force of a full upper body slam concentrated into one of the hardest surfaces on a krogan's body. Most species that have experienced this firsthand describe it as memorable, in the same way that a concussion is memorable.

You gain a Headbutt unarmed Strike. This attack is in the brawling group, uses your Strength modifier, and deals 1d8 bludgeoning damage. A creature hit by your Headbutt must succeed at a Fortitude save (DC = 10 + your level + your Strength modifier) or become stunned 1. On a critical hit, the creature is stunned 1 regardless of the save, and stunned 2 on a critical failure of the save.

5TH LEVEL

BLOOD RAGE ◈

FEAT 5

KROGAN FORTUNE

Trigger You take damage that reduces you to fewer than half your maximum Hit Points.

Krogan adrenaline systems evolved to respond to injury by escalating combat effectiveness-a feedback loop that most medical researchers consider alarming and most krogan consider their best feature. When you are hurt badly enough, your body interprets this as a signal to hit harder, not to retreat.

You gain temporary Hit Points equal to your level + your Constitution modifier (minimum 1). These temporary Hit Points last until the end of the encounter. Additionally, until the end of your next turn, your melee Strikes deal an additional 1d6 damage.

9TH LEVEL

UNDYING WARRIOR

FEAT 9

KROGAN

Krogan redundant biology is not a metaphor. Multiple hearts, backup nervous system pathways, secondary organs for critical functions, and a bone structure that treats most projectiles as a delay rather than a conclusion-all of this culminates, in sufficiently seasoned krogan, in a capacity to continue fighting through damage that would have killed the organism twice over by any reasonable biological accounting. You are one of those krogan.

Your dying threshold is increased by 1 (you die at dying 5 rather than dying 4). You gain a +2 circumstance bonus to recovery checks. When you succeed at a recovery check, you also gain a number of temporary Hit Points equal to your Constitution modifier (minimum 1), which last until the start of your next turn. If you have the Fortitude Fortress ancestry feature, you gain an additional +1 to recovery checks (total +3).

QUARIAN

ANCESTRY

COMMON HUMANOID QUARIAN

> Exiled from their homeworld for creating a synthetic race that turned against them, the quarians have spent three centuries as nomads aboard a vast Migrant Fleet, becoming the galaxy's most skilled engineers-and the species most dependent on the technology they understand better than anyone.

Quarians evolved on the lush world of Rannoch and were a prosperous spacefaring civilization before they created the geth-synthetic laborers who achieved consciousness and then, when ordered to submit to decommissioning, fought back. The resulting war drove quarians from their homeworld. Three centuries aboard the Migrant Fleet have fundamentally shaped quarian biology and culture: with no stable planetary ecosystem to maintain immune system diversity, quarians have developed increasingly fragile immune systems that leave them dangerously vulnerable to environmental pathogens. Every quarian lives permanently within an environmental suit. Despite this vulnerability, quarians are arguably the finest engineers and technicians in the galaxy-a skill born of necessity on overcrowded ships where a broken component could mean death.

YOU MIGHT...

- Maintain meticulous care for technology and equipment, understanding better than most what happens when it fails.
- Keep your distance socially in ways that go beyond the suit-three centuries of exile have made trust a resource to spend carefully.
- Carry an unspoken longing for a home you've never seen but have heard about your entire life.

OTHERS PROBABLY...

- Initially treat you with curious sympathy or mild condescension about your exile before seeing how capable you actually are.
- Assume you speak for your entire species or the Fleet when you clearly speak only for yourself.
- Be startled when they realize your "frail" appearance conceals one of the sharpest technical minds in the room.

LOW-LIGHT VISION

You can see in dim light as though it were bright light.

ENVIRONMENTAL SUIT

Every quarian wears a hermetically sealed environmental suit at all times, a necessity born from their compromised immune systems-exposure to ambient pathogens without suit protection can be rapidly fatal. Three centuries of Flotilla engineering have made these suits remarkably sophisticated: they filter air, regulate temperature, administer medication, and provide minor protection against physical harm. The suit is not a burden to most quarians; it is simply a part of who they are.

Your environmental suit provides a +1 item bonus to AC. You are immune to airborne diseases and inhaled poisons. You can breathe safely in mildly toxic or low-oxygen atmospheres (though not in vacuum or extreme hazard without additional support).

Suit Breach: If your suit is significantly damaged (GM discretion, typically 25+ piercing or slashing damage from a single hit), you become sickened 1 until you spend 10 minutes repairing it with a successful DC 15 Crafting check. Healing potions and similar consumables must be administered via injector port to function (takes an additional action).

TECH EXPERTISE

Three centuries of surviving aboard overcrowded ships where broken technology means death has produced quarian engineers capable of working miracles with improvised tools and salvaged parts. Every quarian is raised from childhood with a fundamental understanding of how machines work, how to repair them under pressure, and how to make them do things their designers never intended. It is less a skill than it is a survival instinct.

You become trained in Crafting. If you would already be trained in Crafting through your class or background, you instead become trained in a Lore skill related to technology or engineering (such as Engineering Lore or Starship Lore). Additionally, the time required for you to Repair an item is reduced by half.

PHYSICAL DESCRIPTION

Quarians are lean, bipedal humanoids of slight build, with three-fingered hands and large, luminous eyes. They are always seen in their environmental suits-hermetically sealed outfits with filtration systems that protect their compromised immune systems. Without these suits in contaminated environments, a quarian rapidly becomes dangerously ill. Their faces, rarely exposed to outsiders, are angular with fine features.

Society

Quarian society is organized around the Migrant Fleet: hundreds of ships in a constantly moving convoy, governed by the Admiralty Board. Every quarian who comes of age must complete the Pilgrimage-a solo journey into the wider galaxy to return with something of value-before being accepted back as a full member of their ship-family. Ship-based clans form the core of social identity.

Beliefs

Quarians are pragmatic and communal, valuing contribution to the Fleet above individual glory. Their spiritual traditions include animistic beliefs about ships having personalities and ancestors watching from the void. Most quarians are lawful in sensibility, respecting the Fleet's authority as a survival necessity, though their ethics vary widely between individuals.

Quarian Heritages

Migrant Fleet Quarian

You grew up on one of the Flotilla's ships, part of the intricate social ecology of a vessel where everyone's role is essential and every cubic meter of living space is precious. Flotilla-raised quarians develop an intimate familiarity with the ship systems that keep them alive, a sensitivity to when something is wrong long before the diagnostics say so, and an orientation toward community cooperation that is simply assumed rather than taught.

You become an expert in Crafting. The time required to Repair an item is reduced to one-quarter normal (rather than half). Once per day when you critically fail a Crafting check to Repair, you can reduce the result to a regular failure instead.

Pilgrim Quarian

Every quarian who comes of age undertakes the Pilgrimage: a solo journey into the wider galaxy to return with something of value that proves they can survive and contribute beyond the safety of the Flotilla. Your Pilgrimage is complete-and whatever you found out there changed you. You've seen the galaxy at ground level, made contacts in unexpected places, and developed the particular competence of someone who spent years figuring out difficult situations alone.

You gain a +1 circumstance bonus to Diplomacy checks with non-quarian species from your Pilgrimage experience with them. You begin play with one Contact-a named individual from another species who owes you a favor or has reason to assist you (work with your GM to establish this contact and their capacity to help).

Rannoch Settler Quarian

You are among the quarians who returned to Rannoch after it was reclaimed-part of the generation attempting to rebuild a civilization on a planet none of them had ever seen, from stories and generations-old records. Settlement on Rannoch means learning to survive on solid ground after a lifetime aboard ships: exposure to open sky, planetary weather, and a natural ecosystem that your immune system was never prepared for. Those who succeed are genuinely remarkable.

Your environmental suit has been adapted for extended planetary use, reducing maintenance requirements. You gain a +1 circumstance bonus to Survival checks and become trained in Nature. Your suit's immune filters have been upgraded for outdoor environments, granting you resistance to natural poisons (those without the magical trait) equal to half your level.

Quarian Feats

Take one of these at 1st level and every even level thereafter, provided you meet its level requirement.

1ST LEVEL

OMNI-TOOL MASTERY

FEAT 1

QUARIAN

Quarians grow up interfacing with technology through an omni-tool as a matter of basic survival-the suit's environmental systems, the Fleet's communication networks, the ship's engineering substrates. By the time a quarian is old enough for their Pilgrimage, the omni-tool is not a device they use. It is an extension of how they process the world. You have the kind of hardware fluency that comes from necessity, and it shows in the speed and ease with which you work.

You gain a +1 circumstance bonus to Crafting and Society checks involving technology, electronics, or networked systems. When you use Crafting to Repair a technological device, you reduce the time required by half. When you critically succeed on a Crafting check to identify or interact with technology, you also learn one additional property or function of the device beyond what the check normally reveals.

Automation: Turn on the toggle for checks involving technology; the +1 applies to Crafting and Society.

SUIT INTEGRITY

FEAT 1

QUARIAN

Every quarian who leaves the Migrant Fleet understands that their environmental suit is the primary barrier between them and an immune system that has never had to defend itself against a normal pathogen load. You have spent enough time maintaining, repairing, and improvising repairs on that suit that you know its failure modes as well as you know your own heartbeat-and you know how to keep it functional under conditions that would compromise a less experienced operator's equipment.

You gain a +2 circumstance bonus to Fortitude saves against disease and poison. When your suit is breached (such as by a critical hit from a piercing or slashing weapon), you can attempt a DC 15 Crafting or Survival check as a free action to improvise a temporary seal; on a success, you negate the breach effect for 10 minutes. You are automatically trained in Crafting if you would not otherwise be.

5TH LEVEL

EMERGENCY EVACUATION PROTOCOL

FEAT 5

QUARIAN MOVE

Trigger You are reduced to fewer than one-quarter your maximum Hit Points.

Centuries of living aboard ships where an emergency can mean a hull breach, an engine failure, or enemy boarders in three corridors simultaneously has produced a quarian cultural reflex: when the situation becomes genuinely critical, you get out. Not in panic-in protocol. You know where the exits are because you always know where the exits are, and when the trigger fires, your body moves before your conscious mind has finished processing the situation.

You immediately Stride up to your full Speed. This movement does not provoke reactions. If you end this movement in cover or out of line of sight of all creatures that could be threatening you, you can attempt to Hide as a free action.

SALARIAN

ANCESTRY

COMMON HUMANOID SALARIAN

> Sharp-minded, fast-talking, and hyper-analytical, salarians process the universe at a pace that other species find exhausting to keep up with-and live a lifespan so short that every decade feels like borrowed time.

Salarians are amphibious bipeds from Sur'Kesh, and their hyperactive metabolism shapes everything about them. They sleep for only an hour each day, move quickly, talk faster, and process information at remarkable speed. The cost of this metabolic intensity is a natural lifespan of only 40 years-and a body that burns itself out rapidly. Salarians are responsible for uplifting both the krogan (during the Rachni Wars) and humanity (accelerating human technological development after first contact), and they have a complicated relationship with the consequences of both decisions. Their intelligence apparatus, the Special Tasks Group (STG), is considered one of the most capable espionage organizations in the galaxy. Salarians communicate in rapid, precise sentences that drop pronouns and get to the point immediately.

YOU MIGHT...

- Speak quickly and efficiently, dropping words that seem obvious to include-to you, context fills in the gaps.
- Approach problems analytically before emotionally, preferring information to intuition when both are available.
- Keep one eye on long-term consequences others haven't considered yet, having seen how interventions compound.

OTHERS PROBABLY...

- Ask you to slow down or repeat yourself-not because you're unclear, but because you assume they're processing as fast as you are.
- Trust your analysis while slightly distrusting your motives, suspecting that you always know more than you're sharing.
- Forget how old you seem relative to how little time you actually have, and feel oddly guilty about it.

HYPERMETABOLISM

Salarian metabolic processes operate at several times the rate of most other species. Their hearts beat faster, their reflexes engage more quickly, and their minds process sensory information in bursts that would be overwhelming to a slower brain. This comes with real costs-salarians need to eat and drink more frequently and burn through their 40-year lifespan at a pace that leaves them looking middle-aged before they are 30-but the tactical advantages in reaction speed and mental throughput are undeniable.

You require only 1 hour of sleep per day (rather than 8) and are immune to the sleep condition. You gain a +2 circumstance bonus to initiative rolls.

ANALYTICAL MIND

Salarian cognition operates in parallel analytical streams that other species lack the neurological architecture to sustain. Where a human recognizes a situation, a salarian simultaneously categorizes it, cross-references it against accumulated experience, runs probability assessments, and produces a recommended action-all before their counterpart has finished blinking. This makes them exceptional researchers, strategists, and investigators, and deeply annoying to work with in social situations where others expect to contribute thoughts. Once per hour when you attempt a Recall Knowledge check, you roll twice and use the better result. This is a fortune effect.

PHYSICAL DESCRIPTION

Salarians are tall, thin bipeds with long necks, large eyes on either side of their head, and smooth, hairless skin that ranges from grey to green to brown. Their most distinctive features are the horns growing from their skulls-typically small, curved, and positioned above the forehead. They move with quick, precise energy and rarely appear physically relaxed.

SOCIETY

Salarian government is a loose confederacy of clans ruled by family matriarchs called Dalatrasses, who engage in elaborate political maneuvering through arranged pairings and long-running negotiations. Males are the minority in salarian society. The STG operates as an almost autonomous intelligence service that occasionally surprises even its own government with the scope of its operations.

Beliefs

Salarians tend toward lawful pragmatism-they respect structures that produce reliable outcomes and distrust chaos. Their spiritual traditions are minimal; salarians are generally secular, though clan honor and intellectual tradition function as quasi-religious anchors. Ethical considerations for long-term consequences are taken seriously.

Sample Names

Mordin, Kirrahe, Padok, Jondum, Niftu, Chorban, Jahleed, Rana, Dara, Sola, Velnaran, Sekat

Salarian Heritages

Dalatrass Lineage Salarian

You come from the matriarchal political families that govern salarian society-the Dalatrasses. Salarian politics are a web of long-term pairings, negotiated alliances, and calculated obligations that make most other species' governments look straightforwardly simple by comparison. Growing up in a Dalatrass family means learning that information is leverage, that every relationship has a value, and that what someone doesn't say is usually more important than what they do.

You become trained in Diplomacy and Society and gain the Salarian Political Lore skill. Once per day you can use the Lie (Deception) action as a free action to create a single false impression that you then immediately address with something technically true-the technical-truth defense being a cornerstone of Dalatrass political culture.

STG Operative Salarian

The Salarian Special Tasks Group operates in the space between what governments admit to and what they actually do. STG operatives are trained for intelligence gathering, sabotage, and covert insertion in environments where conventional military force would cause diplomatic incidents. The STG gets results, rarely leaves evidence, and is not technically supposed to exist in most of the places it operates. You are one of those operatives, or former ones-either is complicated.

You become an expert in Stealth and trained in Deception. You gain the Lie to Me feat. Additionally, you can maintain cover identities with remarkable depth; when you spend at least 1 week building a false identity, creatures attempting to investigate that identity take a -2 circumstance penalty to their checks.

Sur'Kesh Scholar Salarian

The Salarian Union's academic institutions on Sur'Kesh are among the most productive in the galaxy-turning out researchers at a pace that reflects both the salarian work ethic and their compressed lifespan, in which a career that would take a human 40 years must be completed in 15. You studied there, or somewhere equivalent, and emerged with the kind of dense, cross-disciplinary knowledge base that makes you genuinely dangerous to talk to about almost any subject.

You become trained in your choice of Arcana, Occultism, or Nature, and gain two additional Lore skills of your choice. Your Analytical Mind ancestry feature applies to skill checks to Recall Knowledge in addition to saving throws. Once per day when you fail a Recall Knowledge check, you can reroll it and use the better result.

Uplift Scientist Salarian

The salarian science establishment has a long and complicated history of accelerating the technological development of other species for strategic purposes-the krogan uplift, the acceleration of human technology after first contact, various covert programs with less publicly acknowledged outcomes. You are a product of that tradition: a scientist trained specifically in cross-species biological, technological, and social development. The ethical dimensions of this work are something you think about more than your predecessors did.

You become trained in Medicine and two additional Lore skills related to biology, genetics, or a specific species (e.g., Krogan Lore, Xenobiology Lore). You gain the Assurance feat for Medicine. Once per day when you Treat Wounds, you can attempt to treat an additional creature simultaneously without a penalty to either check.

Salarian Feats

Take one of these at 1st level and every even level thereafter, provided you meet its level requirement.

1ST LEVEL

ACCELERATED MIND

FEAT 1

SALARIAN

Salarian neural processing runs at a clock speed that most species would consider medically inadvisable. The metabolic cost is significant-it is part of why salarians live shorter lives than most Council species-but the cognitive throughput is extraordinary. You process situational information faster than your opponents expect, which translates, in practical terms, to arriving first.

You gain a +2 circumstance bonus to initiative rolls. When you roll initiative using Perception, you can also attempt to identify one creature you can see as a free action; the result is as if you had used Recall Knowledge, and you do not need to spend an additional action for it. When you roll initiative using a skill other than Perception, you can choose to use Perception instead without any penalty.

CHEMICAL ANALYSIS ❖

FEAT 1

SALARIAN CONCENTRATE

Salarian olfactory and dermal sensor systems can perform crude chemical analysis on substances in contact with or near their skin. You can identify poisons, pharmaceuticals, chemical accelerants, contaminated water, atmospheric composition anomalies, and a range of other substances by exposure. This is not as precise as a laboratory analysis, but it is immediate, free, and available at all times.

You can attempt a Medicine or Nature check (your choice) to identify a poison, drug, or unknown chemical substance by smell and dermal contact, without requiring any tools. The DC is the same as normal identification, but you gain a +2 circumstance bonus to the check. Additionally, you automatically detect whether a substance you consume or touch is a poison before its effects trigger, giving you a chance to spit it out or drop it before taking damage (a DC 15 Fortitude save to avoid the initial effects if you act immediately).

Automation: Turn on the toggle while identifying a substance; the +2 applies to Medicine and Nature.

STG METHODS

FEAT 5

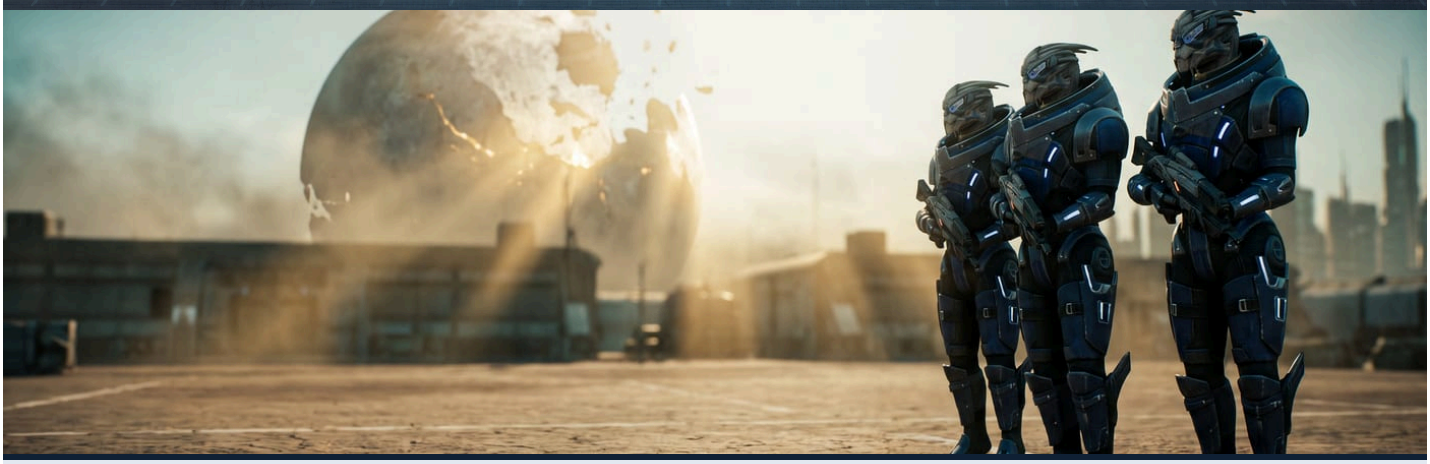

SALARIAN

The Special Tasks Group is the Salarian Union's intelligence and covert operations arm-small-team operators who specialize in getting in, doing the thing no one is supposed to know happened, and getting out before anyone has assembled a coherent account of what occurred. You have trained in or been exposed to STG methods, and they have left a distinctive mark on how you approach problems that other people call obstacles.

You gain a +1 circumstance bonus to Stealth and Deception checks. When you attempt to Gather Information using Diplomacy, Society, or Deception, you can choose not to reveal your true identity or affiliation; success on this check also means you leave no verifiable trace that you were asking. Once per day, when you fail a Stealth check to Hide or Sneak, you can choose to have the check result treated as a success instead-this represents a prepared contingency, not luck.

TURIAN

ANCESTRY

COMMON HUMANOID TURIAN

> Disciplined, duty-driven warriors from the militarized world of Palaven, turians form the backbone of the Citadel's Spectres and the largest military force among the Council races-a people for whom service is not merely a value but an identity.

Turians are bipedal humanoids with a natural exoskeleton of hard plates, sweeping facial structures that include rigid mandibles, and metallic-sheen skin caused by reflective cellular structures that provide minor radiation resistance-a necessity on the high-radiation world of Palaven. Turian society is fundamentally military in structure: every turian serves in the military between the ages of 15 and 30, and military hierarchies form the model for nearly all other social institutions. Turians joined the Citadel Council after the Krogan Rebellions and have served as the primary military enforcer of galactic order ever since. Despite their stern reputation, individual turians are not inherently aggressive-they are simply people who believe deeply that commitments must be honored and obligations must be met, and who find the failure to do so genuinely offensive.

YOU MIGHT...

- Hold yourself to a strict personal code and extend the same expectation to others without apology.
- Express approval through precision and reliability rather than warmth-but feel the warmth nonetheless.
- Find chaotic or unprincipled behavior genuinely baffling, even when it's not directed at you.

OTHERS PROBABLY...

- Initially read your directness as coldness before realizing that a turian who says something means it exactly.
- Trust your reliability even when they're not sure they like you personally.
- Feel a reflexive deference to your confidence and bearing, even if they try to resist it.

LOW-LIGHT VISION

You can see in dim light as though it were bright light.

CARAPACE

Turian bodies are encased in a natural exoskeleton of hard, overlapping plates that protect their vital organs and absorb glancing strikes that would cut or bruise softer species. This carapace is not rigid armor in the traditional sense-it flexes with movement and does not restrict agility-but it provides constant passive protection that turian warriors learn to rely on as a baseline before they strap on actual kit.

While you are unarmored or wearing light armor, your carapace provides a +1 circumstance bonus to AC.

MILITARY DISCIPLINE

Every turian who reaches adulthood has served in the military. This is not mere cultural tradition-it is the core institution through which turian society transmits its values, builds its identity, and produces the competence it expects from all citizens. Fifteen years of mandatory military service instills combat training, unit cohesion, and an unfailing confidence in one's physical capabilities that most other species simply cannot replicate through any other means.

You gain the Assurance feat for your choice of Athletics or Acrobatics. Additionally, choose one martial weapon group; you become trained in all weapons of that group.

PHYSICAL DESCRIPTION

Turians stand 1.8 to 2.1 meters tall with lean, plated builds and distinctive facial carapace structures-swept-back plates and mandibles that frame the lower jaw. Their skin has a metallic sheen from the dextro-amino biology adapted to Palaven's environment. Their eyes are vivid in color, typically blue, green, or yellow. Turian facial markings (clan markings applied in patterns unique to each lineage) cover the face and neck.

SOCIETY

Turian society is stratified by military rank and a deep sense of civic obligation. The Hierarchy governs all turian space through a ranked chain of command that values experience and demonstrated competence over birthright. Turian families are stable and close-knit; children are raised with a clear understanding that their duty to society outweighs their individual preferences.

Beliefs

Turian spiritual life centers on the Spirits-ancestral forces that evaluate whether the living are living up to their commitments. Most turians are lawful by deep cultural conditioning; they respect authority that has earned authority and have genuine contempt for those who abandon their posts or betray their word. Individual ethics within that framework vary.

Sample Names

Garrus, Saren, Nihlus, Chellick, Vakarian, Nyreen, Corinthus, Adrien, Tarquin, Vetra, Macen, Oraka

Turian Heritages

Colony Turian

You grew up on one of the turian colonial worlds rather than Palaven itself-worlds that sit at varying distances from the Hierarchy's institutional center, where the mandatory military service still applies but the rigid cultural uniformity of the homeworld is softer at the edges. Colony turians often develop a more adaptive relationship with non-turian species than their Palaven-raised counterparts, and a broader view of what the Hierarchy is actually for.

You become trained in Diplomacy and gain one additional language of your choice from among those spoken by species common in your colonial region. You gain a +1 circumstance bonus to Diplomacy checks when interacting with non-turian species who might view standard turian demeanor as intimidating, as you have learned to modulate this effectively. You are also trained in Survival.

Palaven Soldier Turian

You trained through the full Turian Hierarchy military program on or near Palaven, the turian homeworld, and graduated into frontline service with the fleet or ground forces. Palaven produces soldiers of a quality that other species generally acknowledge, even grudgingly. The training is long, demanding, and designed to produce warriors who function as a unit first and as individuals second.

You become an expert in Athletics. When you Aid an ally in combat, your Aid bonus is increased by 1 (from +1 to +2, or from +2 to +3 on a critical success). Your Military Discipline ancestry feature applies to two martial weapon groups instead of one.

Spectre-Trained Turian

You underwent the covert operations training that the Hierarchy uses to prepare candidates for Spectre consideration-or you are a Spectre, or a former one. Hierarchy intelligence operations require a specific kind of turian: someone who can operate without the institutional support of their unit, make autonomous decisions in ambiguous situations, and return results without requiring their superiors to know exactly how. This training leaves distinctive marks on a person.

You become trained in Deception and Stealth. You gain a +1 circumstance bonus to Perception checks to Sense Motive. When you are gathering information using Diplomacy, Society, or Deception, you can choose to be remembered as a different species (with a successful DC 15 Deception check) due to specialized camouflage training.

Turian Mercenary

Not all turians serve the Hierarchy their entire lives. Some complete their mandatory service and seek work elsewhere-operating in the mercenary market where their military training is worth exactly what it cost to produce them, plus whatever premium the client is willing to pay for reliability. Turian mercenaries bring discipline and tactical competence to operations that would otherwise rely on considerably less organized personnel.

You become trained in Intimidation and gain the Mercenary Lore skill. You gain access to a wider range of weapons than standard class proficiency: you are trained with all martial weapons (regardless of class). You gain a +1 circumstance bonus to Deception checks to negotiate contract terms when the other party knows or suspects your military background.

Turian Feats

Take one of these at 1st level and every even level thereafter, provided you meet its level requirement.

1ST LEVEL

FORMATION FIGHTER

FEAT 1

TURIAN

Turian military doctrine is built around unit cohesion-the idea that a soldier's effectiveness is a function of where they are relative to their unit, not just their individual capability. You internalized this during your service, and it shows in how you position yourself in combat. You don't just fight. You fight in relation to the people fighting next to you, and that relationship multiplies what both of you can do.

When you are adjacent to at least one ally, you gain a +1 circumstance bonus to attack rolls and a +1 circumstance bonus to AC. When you and an ally are flanking a creature, your flanking bonus to attack rolls increases to +3 (rather than the standard +2). You can use the Aid reaction even if you do not have the Aid skill feat, though you must still meet the check requirements normally.

Automation: Turn on the toggle while adjacent to an ally; the +1 applies to attack rolls and AC. The larger flanking bonus is applied by hand.

HIERARCHY COMMAND ❖

FEAT 5

TURIAN AUDITORY MENTAL

Turian command presence is not about volume or threat. It is about absolute clarity of expectation delivered at exactly the right moment-a tone and manner that cuts through confusion and fear and tells the people around you what to do next with enough authority that they do it without stopping to debate. You have this. It is not something you put on. It is something you are.

Choose up to two allies within 30 feet who can hear you. Each chosen ally gains a +1 circumstance bonus to their next attack roll or skill check made before the end of their next turn. Additionally, if any chosen ally is currently frightened, they reduce their frightened condition by 1. You can use this ability a number of times per day equal to your Charisma modifier (minimum 1).

9TH LEVEL

CARAPACE RESILIENCE

FEAT 9

TURIAN

The turian exoskeleton is not decorative. It is a structural feature that distributes impact loads across a rigid lattice integrated into the musculature, and in individuals whose biology has been pushed through sustained military conditioning, that lattice thickens and hardens beyond the species baseline. Veteran turian soldiers take hits that would permanently injure younger members of their species, and they know it-not with arrogance, but with the calm of something that has been tested repeatedly and not found wanting.

Your natural armor improves. You gain a +1 status bonus to AC when you are unarmored. Additionally, you gain resistance to bludgeoning and slashing damage equal to half your level (minimum 1). When you critically fail a Fortitude save against a physical effect (such as being knocked prone, moved, or stunned by a physical blow), you treat the result as a regular failure instead.

VOLUS

ANCESTRY

COMMON HUMANOID VOLUS

> Short, pressure-suited ammonia-breathers from the high-gravity world of Irune, volus have built one of the galaxy's most powerful economic empires while being personally dependent on environmental suits that other species could remove with a screwdriver-a vulnerability that has made them very good at arranging for protection.

Volus evolved in the thick, ammonia-rich atmosphere of Irune and cannot survive in standard oxygen environments without their suits-which filter the air and regulate atmospheric pressure around their bodies. This permanent dependency on technology has shaped their worldview: volus understand better than almost anyone that survival requires systems you can trust, and they have built those systems in the form of banks, trade networks, and the Elkoss Combine mercantile empire. The Vol Protectorate formally allies with the Turian Hierarchy in exchange for military protection, a rational arrangement that turians honor and volus consider their greatest diplomatic achievement. Despite this dependency and their small stature, volus should not be underestimated: their economic influence shapes galactic markets, and a volus with a grudge and resources is a formidable long-term problem.

YOU MIGHT...

- Evaluate every situation for its cost-benefit ratio before committing-action has consequences, and resources are finite.
- Maintain carefully cultivated relationships with beings who can provide what you cannot do alone.
- Find the willingness of other species to give away things of value deeply confusing-and slightly suspicious.

OTHERS PROBABLY...

- Initially dismiss you as a nonthreat, which you find useful and have stopped trying to correct.
- Respect your knowledge of trade, contracts, and economics even when they find you personally grating.
- Feel vaguely guilty when your breathing apparatus makes a noise and they've forgotten it's there.

VOLUS MECHANICS

PRESSURE SUIT

Volus evolved in the thick, high-pressure ammonia atmosphere of Irune and cannot survive in standard oxygen environments without their pressure suits, which regulate atmospheric pressure and filter their breathing mix. These suits are remarkably engineered for their compactness, providing both life support and a modest degree of physical protection. A volus without their suit in a standard atmosphere begins experiencing pressure differential distress immediately.

Your pressure suit provides a +1 item bonus to AC. You are immune to ammonia-atmosphere hazards and can breathe safely in high-pressure environments that would be lethal to most species. You are immune to inhaled poisons.

Suit Dependency: If your pressure suit is breached or removed in a standard oxygen atmosphere, you become sickened 1 and this condition does not improve until the suit is repaired or replaced (DC 15 Crafting, 10 minutes). If exposed for more than 10 minutes, you become sickened 2, increasing by 1 each additional 10 minutes.

ECONOMIC ACUMEN

The Elkoss Combine and the Vol Protectorate's banking networks have made volus the galactic economy's most important invisible hand. Volus instinctively think in terms of value, exchange, leverage, and long-term obligation-not because they are taught to, but because their culture treats economic understanding the way other cultures treat literacy: as a basic competency every adult should possess.

You become trained in Society. If you would already be trained in Society through your class or background, you instead become trained in Mercantile Lore or another trade-related Lore of your choice. You gain a +1 circumstance bonus to Diplomacy checks made in the context of negotiating contracts, brokering deals, or setting prices.

PHYSICAL DESCRIPTION

Volus stand approximately 1.2 meters tall with round, squat bodies adapted for high-gravity and high-pressure environments. Their faces are broad with wide, flat nostrils and small mouths, and their skin is dark and rubbery. They are always seen in their environmental suits-typically bulky, sealed garments with rounded helmets and breathing apparatus. Their short arms and three-fingered hands are surprisingly dexterous.

Society

Volus society under the Vol Protectorate is organized around commerce, clan allegiance, and the careful management of status through economic achievement. Their caste system is loosely meritocratic-achievement in trade elevates one's standing. Volus cities on Irune are densely packed and highly organized by necessity; their homeworld's high gravity and atmospheric composition demand efficient infrastructure.

Beliefs

Volus are practical and contract-minded; they respect agreements as sacred as any spiritual law and treat breaking a deal as a serious moral failure. Their spiritual traditions tie closely to Irune's natural cycles and the concept of balance in exchange. Most volus are lawful and self-interested, but their word, once given formally, is considered completely reliable.

Sample Names

Din Korlack, Barla Von, Expat, Niftu Cal, Jahleed, Blasto (hanar name sometimes used by volus), Vel Nol, Kor Tun, Shal Vin

Volus Heritages

Engineer Volus

Not every volus works in finance. The species that invented the credit economy also had to build the infrastructure to run it-the stations, the ships, the communication relays, the environmental systems that keep ammonia-breathing aliens alive in an oxygen-nitrogen galaxy. You are one of those volus who went into the technical trades, and you have found that mechanical competence is its own kind of currency: universally valued, immediately transferable, and considerably harder to devalue than credits.

You become trained in Crafting and gain the Engineering Lore and Starship Systems Lore skills. When you Repair an item or vehicle, you reduce the repair time by half. You gain a +1 circumstance bonus to Crafting checks to identify the function and value of technological devices and equipment.

Protectorate Diplomat Volus

The Volus Protectorate's relationship with the Turian Hierarchy is one of the more interesting arrangements in Citadel space-a species that traded military sovereignty for commercial security, and has been quietly profiting from that trade ever since. As a Protectorate diplomat, you operate in the institutional space between the volus merchant interests and the political structure of the Hierarchy and Council, navigating a world where every conversation is a negotiation and every negotiation has financial implications that extend three relationships deep.

You become trained in Diplomacy and Society and gain the Politics Lore skill. You gain a +1 circumstance bonus to Diplomacy and Deception checks when interacting with officials, bureaucrats, or government representatives. You can use Society in place of Intimidation to Demoralize targets who are susceptible to social censure (such as political or civic officials).

Trade Baron Volus

The volus trade barons are the commercial apex of a species that has spent millennia perfecting the art of making money. You come from one of the great merchant houses or have built your own commercial empire through a combination of financial acuity, aggressive negotiation, and a tolerance for risk that other species might interpret as recklessness. You understand that the economy is the most powerful force in the galaxy-more reliable than weapons, more durable than governments, and considerably more profitable than either.

You become an expert in Society and gain the Mercantile Lore and Guild Lore skills. You gain a +2 circumstance bonus to checks to Earn Income or to Diplomacy checks made to negotiate financial agreements. When you critically succeed on an Earn Income check, you gain an additional 25% of the base income.

Void Trader Volus

The edges of mapped space are where regulations are suggestions, tariffs are negotiable, and the margin on a cargo that everyone else considers too risky to move can be extraordinary. You have spent your career-or most of it-operating in those spaces: running routes between systems that don't appear on standard charts, trading in goods that occupy a complicated legal status, and developing relationships with the kind of clients who pay in advance and ask no questions. You are very good at your work. The authorities have varying opinions about this.

You become trained in Stealth and Thievery and gain the Underworld Lore skill. You gain a +1 circumstance bonus to Deception checks to conceal the nature or value of cargo or goods. When you attempt to Subsist in a settlement or urban environment, you can use Thievery in place of Society.

VOLUS

The volus did not invent currency, but they refined it, standardized it, and turned it into the infrastructure of Citadel civilization. A species that has spent millennia thinking about value-real value, not the number on a tag-develops an instinct for it that operates below the conscious level. You know what things are worth. You can usually tell when someone is lying about what things are worth. And you have a distinctive read on the moment when a negotiation is about to break down versus the moment when the other party is about to agree to something they will later regret.

You can always determine the approximate market value of any item you examine (within 10%). You gain a +2 circumstance bonus to Deception checks to misrepresent the value of goods and to Perception checks (Sense Motive) to detect when someone is misrepresenting value to you. When you critically succeed on a check to Earn Income, you earn an additional 50% of the base income.

Automation: Turn on the toggle when goods and their value are in play; the +2 applies to Deception and Perception.

AMMONIA RESERVE

FEAT 5

VOLUS

Volus suits maintain a pressurized ammonia-nitrogen atmosphere, but the biological systems underneath are adapted to manage ammonia concentrations that would be lethal to most species-and to do so under variable conditions. When your suit is compromised or you are exposed to unusual atmospheric conditions, your body has reserves and tolerances that give you more time than biology alone would suggest.

You gain resistance 5 to poison damage. You can hold your breath or function in a compromised atmosphere for twice as long as normal before suffering negative effects. When you are exposed to an inhaled poison or hazardous atmosphere, you gain a +2 circumstance bonus to the initial Fortitude save. Additionally, if your environmental suit is breached, you do not immediately take penalties from the hostile environment-instead you have a number of rounds equal to your Constitution modifier (minimum 1) before environmental effects begin.

VORCHA

ANCESTRY

COMMON HUMANOID VORCHA

Ferocious, short-lived, and biologically remarkable, vorcha are the galaxy's most overlooked species-cannon fodder by reputation, survivors by biology, and occasionally something much more dangerous when given the chance to adapt.

Vorcha evolved on Heshtok, a brutal world of constant environmental hazards, and their biology is a direct answer to it: vorcha possess clusters of undifferentiated cells that rapidly respond to physical trauma or environmental stress by adapting the body for greater resistance. Wounds trigger accelerated healing; heat exposure triggers heat resistance; atmospheric poisons trigger respiratory adaptation. This makes vorcha terrifyingly resilient in combat-not because they cannot be hurt, but because they become harder to hurt the more they take. Their natural lifespan is 20 years, but in that time a vorcha can develop capabilities that would take other species decades of specialized training. Most vorcha in the wider galaxy serve as low-ranking Blood Pack mercenaries or are found in slums, considered expendable by those who hire them-a self-fulfilling prophecy that some exceptional vorcha are determined to disprove.

YOU MIGHT...

- Trust instinct over deliberation-where others plan, you react, and your reactions tend to work out.
- Take damage in stride with a vicious pragmatism: it hurts now, and you'll be harder to hurt next time.
- Surpass every expectation others set for your species, which is simultaneously gratifying and exhausting.

OTHERS PROBABLY...

- Underestimate your intelligence consistently-a mistake they usually get to make only once.
- Feel deeply unsettled watching you recover from an injury they expected to be much more serious.
- Treat you as a weapon rather than a person, which you've learned to use against them.

VORCHA MECHANICS

Hit Points 10
Size Medium
Speed 30 feet
Attribute Boosts Strength, Constitution, Free
Attribute Flaw Intelligence
Languages Common, Vorcha. You also gain a number of additional languages equal to your Intelligence modifier (if positive), chosen from Batarian, Krogan, Turian, Salarian.

DARKVISION

You can see in dim light as though it were bright light, and in darkness as though it were dim light (in black and white only).

RAPID CELL REGENERATION

Vorcha biology is built around clusters of undifferentiated somatic cells that respond to injury by rapidly regenerating damaged tissue-a mechanism driven by evolutionary pressure on a world where constant harm was the norm. The speed of this healing is visible and, to many other species, deeply unsettling to watch: wounds close over minutes, and vorcha who survive encounters with fire, acid, or toxins often emerge with greater resistance to those hazards than they had going in.

You gain fast healing 2: at the start of each of your turns, if you are below half your maximum Hit Points, you recover 2 Hit Points. Additionally, you gain a +1 circumstance bonus to saving throws against poison and disease effects.

ADAPTIVE PHYSIOLOGY

The same undifferentiated cell clusters that drive vorcha rapid healing also respond to sustained environmental stress by adapting the body for future exposure. A vorcha who survives a fire emerges with greater heat resistance. One who endures repeated acid burns becomes harder to damage with corrosives. This adaptation is not instantaneous-it requires sustained exposure over hours and will not save a vorcha from a killing blow-but over time, it makes vorcha increasingly difficult to kill with the same method twice.

After spending at least 24 hours exposed to a specific type of energy damage (fire, cold, acid, electricity, or sonic), you gain resistance 5 to that damage type. This resistance changes when you gain a new adaptation-you cannot maintain multiple resistances simultaneously. The adaptation fades if you go more than a week without relevant exposure.

Automation: Turn on Adaptive Physiology on your sheet and pick the damage type you have adapted to; resistance 5 to it applies.

PHYSICAL DESCRIPTION

Vorcha are lean, wiry bipeds standing 1.6 to 1.8 meters tall with mottled, reddish-brown skin that shifts slightly in texture based on current environmental adaptations. Their faces are elongated with distinctive forehead spines and wide, amber-colored eyes. They move with quick, aggressive energy and a constant physical tension. Their healing is visually obvious-wounds close rapidly and color shifts in the skin mark recent adaptation sites.

SOCIETY

Vorcha society on Heshtok is organized around violent pack hierarchies: the strongest leads until someone stronger takes over, and social bonds are maintained through demonstrated usefulness and shared aggression. Outside Heshtok, vorcha form tight-knit clans within the Blood Pack mercenary company or in slum communities of other species' cities where they tend to cluster. Elder vorcha-those who survive past 15 years-command absolute respect.

BELIEFS

Vorcha spiritual traditions are oral and centered on survival and the concept of worthy death: a vorcha who dies in honorable combat is considered to have lived fully. Most vorcha are pragmatic and immediate in their ethical thinking, but those who have experienced the wider galaxy sometimes develop more complex moral frameworks built on the bedrock of that survival drive.

SAMPLE NAMES

Garm, Jok, Kureck, Nakmor (often a krogan clan name adopted), Rata, Torr, Vesk, Krul, Yetch, Harsk

VORCHA HERITAGES

BLOOD PACK VORCHA

The Blood Pack is the mercenary organization that vorcha are most commonly associated with-a krogan-led outfit that correctly identified that vorcha make excellent shock troops if you give them weapons, point them at something, and get out of the way. You have served with the Blood Pack, are currently serving, or were trained in the operational culture they developed for vorcha combatants: aggressive, expendable, and significantly more dangerous than most people expect when they see you coming.

You become trained in Intimidation and Athletics and gain the Mercenary Lore skill. When you successfully Demoralize a creature, the frightened condition you impose lasts 1 additional round. You gain a +1 circumstance bonus to Athletics checks to Grapple or Shove.

EVOLVED VORCHA

The vorcha adaptive biology that makes the species so resilient has, in rare individuals, produced something beyond the standard template. Your cellular adaptation ran further, faster, or in a more directed fashion than typical-the result of genetic variation, unusual environmental pressures during developmental periods, or simple biological fortune. You heal faster than most vorcha, your adaptations are more pronounced, and you have developed capabilities that mark you as something different from the baseline. Other vorcha notice. Most other species don't know what they're looking at, which is an advantage you have learned to use.

Your Rapid Cell Regeneration ancestry feature's fast healing value increases by 1 (to fast healing 3 when below half HP). You gain a +1 circumstance bonus to Fortitude saves against disease and poison. Once per day when you fail a Fortitude save, you can reroll it and use the better result.

SCAVENGER VORCHA

Most vorcha who end up in civilized space do so as scavengers-finding the gaps between organized society where survival is possible without the institutional backing that other species take for granted. You have learned to make use of what others discard, to find shelter in spaces others consider uninhabitable, and to identify value in things that more comfortable species overlook. It is not a glamorous existence, but it has made you extraordinarily resourceful and considerably harder to kill than the average person in your income bracket.

You become trained in Survival and Thievery and gain the Underworld Lore skill. You can use Survival in place of Society to Subsist in any environment, including urban settings. When you Craft improvised items or weapons, you treat your Crafting rank as one higher (maximum expert) for determining what you can produce.

VOID VORCHA

Some vorcha end up in space-on stations, ships, or drifting habitats at the margins of mapped systems-and adapt to it in the way that vorcha adapt to everything: by changing. The low-gravity environments, recycled atmospheres, and vacuum-adjacent conditions of deep space living have shaped your biology in subtle but meaningful ways. You move differently in microgravity. You have an intuitive read on pressurized environments that vorcha who grew up planetside simply don't develop. The void is not comfortable, but it is yours.

You become trained in Acrobatics and gain the Starship Systems Lore and Vacuum Environments Lore skills. You ignore the first 2 points of penalty from low-gravity or zero-gravity environments on Athletics and Acrobatics checks. You gain a +1 circumstance bonus to Perception checks to detect atmospheric anomalies, pressure changes, or hull integrity issues.

VORCHA FEATS

Take one of these at 1st level and every even level thereafter, provided you meet its level requirement.

1ST LEVEL

FERAL BITE

FEAT 1

VORCHA

Vorcha dentition is adapted for an omnivorous diet in competitive scarcity conditions-which is to say, it is designed to bite through things that do not want to be bitten through. The jaw structure is reinforced beyond what most species would consider necessary, and the bite reflex is connected to a threat-response system that activates faster than conscious decision-making. In close quarters, this is relevant.

You gain a Feral Bite unarmed Strike. This attack is in the brawling group, has the agile and finesse traits, and deals 1d6 piercing damage. On a critical hit, the target takes 1d4 persistent bleed damage in addition to the Strike's normal effects. If you have a grabbed or restrained target, your Feral Bite deals an additional 1d6 damage.

5TH LEVEL

ADAPTIVE IMMUNITY

FEAT 5

VORCHA

Vorcha adaptive biology works faster than most species' immune systems can even register a threat. Where a human might spend a week fighting off an infection, you spend hours. Where a disease might permanently compromise another species' physiology, yours adapts to it, incorporates the relevant information, and continues operating. This extends beyond pathogens: toxins, chemical agents, and physiological stressors that accumulate in most bodies are processed out by yours in a fraction of the expected time.

At the end of each of your turns, you can attempt a DC 15 flat check to reduce the value of one of the following conditions by 1: clumsy, drained, enfeebled, sickened, or stupefied. Additionally, you gain a +2 circumstance bonus to Fortitude saves against disease, poison, and effects that would cause the drained or sickened conditions. The first time each day you would gain the sickened condition, you can attempt a DC 15 Fortitude save; on a success, you do not gain the condition.

SOLDIER DURABILITY +4 HP from combat conditioning.

SIGNATURE ABILITIES Adrenaline Rush, Concussive Shot, Fortification

POWER ACCESS All ammo powers (ME Ammo Powers compendium). Soldiers do not natively access biotic or tech power feats.

WEAPONS Proficient with all weapon groups - assault rifles, shotguns, sniper rifles, pistols, submachine guns, heavy weapons.

ARMOR Heavy, medium, and light armor. Heavy armor preferred.

PLAYSTYLE Front-line combatant. Soldiers are the most resilient class and the most weapon-versatile. Their ammo powers let them adapt to any enemy type without investing in biotic or tech abilities. In a squad, the Soldier is the one who goes through the front door.

ROLEPLAYING THE SOLDIER

During Combat. You hold the line, laying down suppressive fire to keep enemies pinned while your squad maneuvers. You cycle through ammo powers to exploit weaknesses and close the distance when the moment demands it.

During Social Encounters. You speak plainly and expect the same in return. Diplomacy has its place, but you're quick to note when the enemy isn't stopping for negotiations.

While Exploring. You take point or watch the rear, weapon at low ready. Cover positions, chokepoints, and potential ambush sites register as naturally as breathing.

In Downtime. You drill. Weapon maintenance, combat simulations, and physical conditioning are your routine. You might also spend time mentoring newer soldiers or reviewing after-action reports.

You Might...

- Approach every obstacle as a tactical problem to be solved with superior firepower and positioning.
- Keep your squadmates alive through sheer aggression, believing the best defense is overwhelming offense.
- Have strong opinions about weapon loadouts and spend downtime calibrating gear.

Others Probably...

- Respect your combat instincts but wonder if you ever met a problem you didn't want to shoot.
- Rely on you to hold the line when everything else falls apart.
- Assume you're always ready for a fight, even in peacetime.

SIGNATURE ABILITIES Combat Drone, Sentry Turret, Incinerate, Overload, AI Hacking, Cryo Blast

POWER ACCESS All tech powers (ME Tech Powers compendium). Engineers do not natively access biotic power feats.

WEAPONS Pistols, submachine guns. Light weapons preferred; heavy weapons and sniper rifles are not standard.

ARMOR Light and medium armor only. Combat Drone provides area denial that compensates for lighter armor.

PLAYSTYLE Force multiplier and control specialist. Engineers rarely trade shots directly - they strip defenses, deploy drones and turrets, and create conditions that the rest of the squad exploits. Best when given time to set up.

ROLEPLAYING THE ENGINEER

During Combat. You stand at the edge of the firefight, deploying tech powers and drones to control the battlefield. You disrupt enemy systems and create openings for allies while staying mobile enough to avoid direct engagement.

During Social Encounters. You prefer facts over feelings and can get lost in technical tangents. You're most valuable when someone needs a rapid assessment of a technical threat.

While Exploring. You scan everything. Terminals, access panels, and structural details catch your eye. You often find shortcuts or resources others walk right past.

In Downtime. You tinker — upgrading equipment, running diagnostics, writing VI subroutines, or prototyping new tech powers. You maintain detailed logs and schematics of everything you've touched.

You Might...

- See every mechanical system as a puzzle waiting to be solved and every piece of enemy tech as a potential tool.
- Pause mid-firefight to admire elegant engineering before destroying it.
- Have strong opinions on power-to-weight ratios and optimal system configurations.

Others Probably...

- Come to you first when something electronic stops working.
- Assume you can hack, override, or disable anything given enough time.
- Worry you'll start disassembling critical equipment out of curiosity.

BIOTIC CONDITIONING +2 circumstance bonus to Fortitude saves (years of biotic conditioning hardens the body against physical trauma).

SIGNATURE ABILITIES Singularity, Warp, Throw, Stasis, Pull, Dark Channel, Dominate

POWER ACCESS All biotic powers (ME Biotic Powers compendium). Adepts do not natively access tech power feats.

WEAPONS Pistols and submachine guns only. Adepts depend on powers, not guns.

ARMOR Light armor only. Biotic Barrier compensates for the lack of physical protection.

PLAYSTYLE Crowd control and combo detonation. An Adept's power is in setup - priming multiple enemies simultaneously with Singularity, then detonating with Throw or Warp for cascading Biotic Explosions. Fragile without their barrier up; devastating when they control positioning.

ROLEPLAYING THE ADEPT

During Combat. You are the force multiplier. Singularity and throw clear formations while warp shreds through barriers. You prime targets for biotic detonations and look for the moment the battlefield tips in your favor.

During Social Encounters. You're perceptive about intent — emotions sometimes wash over you through your amp. You navigate social situations with patience and read the room better than most.

While Exploring. You sense pressure differentials, structural stresses, and gravitational anomalies that warn of danger ahead. Confined spaces don't bother you.

In Downtime. You meditate and run biotic exercises that look effortless but require intense focus. You study dark energy theory and push your amp's calibration to its limits.

You Might...

- Feel the dark energy currents around you even in peaceful moments, perceiving the world as a lattice of mass and force.
- Trust your biotic instincts when logic says otherwise.
- Find combat almost meditative — every throw and warp an expression of who you are.

Others Probably...

- Watch you nervously in confined spaces, wondering if a biotic surge might happen without warning.
- Rely on you to shred through enemy defenses that weapons can't touch.
- Assume you have a more complicated relationship with your own mortality than most.

POWER ACCESS Charge, Nova, Biotic Barrier, and the close-range biotic suite from the ME Biotic Powers compendium. Vanguards have limited access to long-range biotic control powers (no Singularity, limited Warp). No native tech power access.

WEAPONS Shotguns (primary), pistols (secondary). Vanguards close the distance with Charge and finish with a shotgun burst.

ARMOR Heavy armor preferred. Vanguards tank through aggression - Charge restores shield HP, Nova is a last resort. They need the HP to survive the approach.

PLAYSTYLE Aggressive melee-range biotic fighter. Charge into a group, Nova for point-blank devastation, shotgun any survivors, and rely on Charge's shield recharge to stay alive. Extremely effective in close quarters; exposed at range.

ROLEPLAYING THE VANGUARD

During Combat. You are the opening salvo. Charge carries you directly into enemy formations and your shotgun and nova abilities turn the resulting chaos into opportunity. You leave long-range work to others.

During Social Encounters. You speak your mind without hesitation and have little patience for prolonged negotiation. You're honest — sometimes brutally so — and people trust you because of it.

While Exploring. You move aggressively through space, comfortable with closeness and proximity that makes others nervous. You're often first through the door.

In Downtime. You push your physical limits constantly — sparring, conditioning, drilling the muscle memory of combat. You study enemy tactics looking for new angles for Charge.

You Might...

- Judge every situation by whether to charge in or wait for the perfect moment — and almost always charge.
- Feed off the chaos of close-quarters fighting where biotics and a shotgun are the only things that matter.
- Run toward gunfire as a reflex rather than a decision.

Others Probably...

- Worry you'll get yourself killed doing something reckless — then watch you emerge from the wreckage unscathed.
- Rely on you to break up defensive formations no one else can crack.
- Assume your survival instincts are entirely optional to you.

INFILTRATOR TRAINING +2 circumstance bonus to Stealth checks (trained in concealment and operational silence).

SIGNATURE ABILITIES Tactical Cloak, Incinerate, AI Hacking (or Sabotage), Energy Drain

POWER ACCESS Tactical Cloak (core, always available), plus a limited selection of tech powers from the ME Tech Powers compendium - typically one offensive power (Incinerate or Cryo Blast) and one utility/crowd control power (AI Hacking, Sabotage, or Energy Drain). No biotic power access.

WEAPONS Sniper rifles (primary), pistols and submachine guns (secondary). The Tactical Cloak precision bonus is designed for sniper follow-through.

ARMOR Light and medium armor. Infiltrators rely on positioning and cloak rather than taking hits.

PLAYSTYLE Precision control from range. Cloak to reposition, uncloak for a precision sniper shot (+2d6 from Tactical Cloak), strip one enemy's defenses with Incinerate or Energy Drain, and use AI Hacking to remove a synthetic threat from the fight entirely. High single-target damage; low survivability in open combat.

ROLEPLAYING THE INFILTRATOR

During Combat. You find high ground, eliminate priority targets with precision, and keep enemies off-balance with tech powers and tactical cloak. You engage and disengage faster than anyone can track.

During Social Encounters. You're observant and economical with words. You notice inconsistencies others miss and file them away. You can be charming when needed, but it's always a tool.

While Exploring. You move quietly and efficiently, gathering information before committing to a path. Guard patterns, camera positions, and emergency exits register automatically.

In Downtime. You clean and calibrate weapons with near-ritualistic precision. You review mission data, run scenarios in your head, and prepare for situations you hope never happen.

You Might...

- See every room as a set of angles, lines of sight, and kill zones before noticing the furniture.
- Keep your own counsel — information is ammunition, and you don't share either carelessly.
- Trust your own assessment over anyone else's intel.

Others Probably...

- Appreciate your precision but find your silences unnerving.
- Assume you know things you're not sharing.
- Rely on you to gather intelligence no one else could safely obtain.

Class feats available at levels: 1, 2, 4, 6, 8, 10, 12, 14, 16, 18, 20

SENTINEL CONDITIONING +1 circumstance bonus to all saving throws (combined biotic/tech training creates comprehensive defensive conditioning).

SIGNATURE ABILITIES Tech Armor, Throw, Warp, Overload, Cryo Blast

POWER ACCESS A hybrid selection from both ME Biotic Powers and ME Tech Powers compendiums. Sentinels can take biotic powers from the control/debuff suite (Throw, Warp, Stasis) and defensive/utility tech powers (Tech Armor, Overload, Cryo Blast). They do not access the highest-tier powers of either type.

WEAPONS Assault rifles and shotguns. More weapon-versatile than pure biotic/tech classes.

ARMOR Medium and heavy armor, supplemented by Tech Armor. The combination makes Sentinels the hardest class to kill outright.

PLAYSTYLE Durable generalist. Sentinels don't dominate any single tactical dimension but handle every situation adequately. Tech Armor provides a damage-buffer layer on top of regular armor. Throw and Warp enable biotic combos at lower power level, while Overload and Cryo Blast handle shields and crowd control. Best for players who want to be the team's anchor rather than its specialist.

ROLEPLAYING THE SENTINEL

During Combat. You hold position under fire, using tech armor, overload, and biotic powers to deny ground and protect allies. You don't charge — you hold, counter, and let enemies break themselves against you.

During Social Encounters. You listen more than you talk. When you do share an opinion it's measured and well-reasoned. People look to you when they want an honest assessment without emotional noise.

While Exploring. You're methodical and thorough. You check for hazards, verify exits, and establish fallback positions before the squad moves forward.

In Downtime. You review defensive protocols, run threat simulations, and calibrate your medical kit. You want every system performing optimally when it counts.

You Might...

- Hold the line when everyone else is pulling back, trusting your armor and training to absorb what others can't.
- Resist surrendering tactical initiative even when the numbers say you should.
- Feel personally responsible when a teammate takes damage you could have prevented.

Others Probably...

- Rely on you as the immovable anchor of any engagement.
- Assume your defensive systems can absorb more punishment than any one person should.
- Trust you with the rear guard or the most exposed position without hesitation.

1ST LEVEL

SENTINEL MASTERY

FEAT 1

BIOTIC TECH

Dual biotic and tech training allows you to deploy both disciplines with exceptional efficiency. Biotic and tech powers you use each have their action cost reduced by 1 (minimum 1 action).

Automation: Biotic and tech powers show their reduced action cost. The action cost reduction from each mastery tier is the same reduction; they don't stack.

7TH LEVEL

IMPROVED SENTINEL MASTERY

FEAT 7

BIOTIC TECH

Prerequisites: Sentinel Mastery

You have refined your dual-discipline approach into a seamless defense. Biotic and tech powers each have their action cost reduced by 1 (minimum 1 action). Once per round, when you use both a biotic power and a tech power in the same turn, you gain a +2 circumstance bonus to AC until the start of your next turn.

Prerequisite: Sentinel Mastery.

Automation: Turn on the toggle on your sheet after using both kinds of power in one turn, and off again at the start of your next turn. Like Tech Armor, this is a circumstance bonus, so the two don't stack.

13TH LEVEL

SUPERIOR SENTINEL MASTERY

FEAT 13

BIOTIC TECH

Prerequisites: Improved Sentinel Mastery

Your hybrid discipline reaches its apex, blending biotic and tech into a seamless defensive and offensive system. Biotic and tech powers each have their action cost reduced by 1 (minimum 1 action) and you retain the AC bonus from using both in the same turn. Tech Armor's damage reduction increases by 2. Your biotic and tech powers deal +1d4 bonus damage.

Prerequisite: Improved Sentinel Mastery.

Automation: The +1d4 is added to the damage of your biotic and tech powers. Tech Armor has no damage reduction for the +2 to raise, so that part is left to your GM.

BACKGROUNDS

YOUR HISTORY BEFORE THE FIGHT

Each background grants two ability boosts, skill training, a Lore skill, and one 1st-level skill feat.

BACKGROUND	BOOSTS	SKILL	LORE	SKILL FEAT	DESCRIPTION
Alliance Soldier	Constitution or Strength, free	Athletics	Systems Alliance Lore	Quick Jump	You served in the Systems Alliance military, humanity's primary defense force and its voice in galactic politics. Years of training, deployment, and combat experience hardened your body and sharpened your instincts. Whether you survived the Skyllian Blitz, patrolled the Terminus border, or served aboard an Alliance frigate, military service left an indelible mark on how you move, think, and solve problems.
Biotic Prodigy	Constitution or Charisma, free	Occultism	Element Zero Lore	Oddity Identification	Element zero exposure before birth - or a rare, unexplained neurological event - gifted you with exceptional biotic potential. You were identified early and sent for training at a biotic academy, where instructors noted your unusual raw ability even among students with similar exposure. Most biotics develop adequate field application. You developed something else entirely.
Cerberus Agent	Intelligence or Strength, free	Intimidation	Cerberus Lore	Quick Coercion	You believed - or needed to believe - in humanity's manifest destiny among the stars. Cerberus recruited you, trained you, and deployed you against threats the Alliance refused to acknowledge. The organization gave you resources, a mission, and the uncomfortable knowledge of what humanity's enemies are actually capable of. Whatever doubts you carry now, the skills remain.
Citadel Bureaucrat	Intelligence or Charisma, free	Society	Citadel Council Lore	Experienced Professional	The Citadel's administrative machinery is vast enough that millions of careers disappear into it without trace. Yours didn't. You navigated the Presidium's endless layered jurisdictions, learned which regulations were enforced and which were merely words, and developed an instinct for institutional power that most people never acquire. The Council doesn't govern the galaxy so much as it ratifies what the bureaucracy has already decided.

Background	Boosts	Skill	Lore	Skill Feat	Description
Citadel Wards	Charisma or Wisdom, free	Society	Citadel Lore	Streetwise	The Presidium gleams for visiting dignitaries. The Wards are where everyone else lives. Millions of beings from dozens of species crowd into residential towers, commercial districts, and service corridors that most Presidium residents never see. Growing up in the Wards means learning the rhythms of a genuinely multicultural society - who trusts whom, which districts belong to which communities, and what the actual power structures are beneath the ones on the organization chart.
Colonist	Constitution or Wisdom, free	Survival	Frontier Lore	Forager	You grew up somewhere humanity wasn't supposed to be able to survive - a colony world at the edge of explored space, an outpost that measured its isolation in months of travel time, a settlement that built everything it needed from whatever the planet provided. That experience gave you a pragmatic relationship with hardship that people raised in the inner systems simply don't have.
Corporate Operative	Intelligence or Charisma, free	Diplomacy	Corporate Lore	Bargain Hunter	The major corporations operating in galactic space - Eldfell-Ashland, Binary Helix, Synthetic Insights - answer to no government and employ their own security, intelligence, and negotiation assets. You were one of those assets. Your work required knowing when to talk, when to listen, and when to let the contract speak for itself.
Earth Native	Charisma or Wisdom, free	Performance	Earth Lore	Impressive Performance	Humanity's homeworld carries the weight of the species' entire history - every war, every art form, every scientific breakthrough, every catastrophic failure. Earth is the cultural core of the Systems Alliance and the reference point against which humanity measures everything it has become in the galaxy. Growing up here means you were shaped by that history: the music, the politics, the literature, the sports, and the contradictions of a species that nearly destroyed its own planet and then decided to expand into someone else's galaxy.
Illium	Intelligence or Charisma, free	Deception	Illium Lore	Charming Liar	Technically, Illium is a lawfully governed asari world. Practically, it operates as a free market with diplomatic immunity - a planet where anything can be bought, sold, or contracted if the paperwork is correct.

Background	Boosts	Skill	Lore	Skill Feat	Description
					You navigated that system, which means you know how to read a contract, understand which regulations are enforced, and recognize when someone is using legality as a tool rather than a constraint. The smile and the clause are both part of the negotiation.
Infiltrator	Dexterity or Intelligence, free	Deception	Infiltrator Lore	Lie to Me	You gathered information that wasn't meant to be gathered. Whether you worked for Alliance Intelligence, a private security firm, or a client you never met in person, your value was your ability to be somewhere you weren't supposed to be and leave without anyone knowing you'd been there. The work changed how you process every room you enter.
Mercenary	Strength or Constitution, free	Athletics	Mercenary Lore	Titan Wrestler	The Blue Suns, Eclipse, Blood Pack, and dozens of smaller outfits provide the galaxy with armed professionals willing to do what standing militaries won't or can't. You were one of them. The work was rarely clean, always dangerous, and paid well enough that you kept taking contracts. You've learned to evaluate threats fast, because in your line of work you don't get a second chance to reassess.
Noble	Charisma or Intelligence, free	Diplomacy	Politics Lore	Hobnobber	Wealth and influence are not the same thing, but you have both. Your family - or the institution you were born into - provided access to education, connections, and resources that most people spend careers trying to acquire. You've been in rooms where galaxy-shaping decisions were made, watched them be made badly, and understood that the real power usually belongs to whoever controls what gets said next.
Omega	Dexterity or Charisma, free	Stealth	Omega Lore	Experienced Smuggler	There is nowhere else in the galaxy quite like Omega. The Terminus's largest station has no government, no law, and no shortage of people willing to fill those vacancies violently. You grew up here, which means you learned early that visibility is a liability, that everyone wants something, and that the station's endless crowds are simultaneously your greatest danger and your best cover. Aria T'Loak keeps Omega from destroying itself. Everything else is negotiable.

Background	Boosts	Skill	Lore	Skill Feat	Description
Omni-Tool Engineer	Intelligence or Dexterity, free	Crafting	Omni-Tool Lore	Quick Repair	You didn't just learn to use an omni-tool. You learned to understand it - the hardware layer, the firmware, the edge cases the manufacturer never anticipated, and the modifications that turn consumer hardware into something else entirely. That knowledge made you valuable to anyone who needed tech that worked in conditions where it wasn't supposed to.
Palaven	Dexterity or Wisdom, free	Acrobatics	Palaven Lore	Cat Fall	Every turian serves. This is not metaphor or tradition - it is the organizing principle of an entire civilization. Palaven's mandatory military service structures society around collective duty, hierarchy, and the understanding that the individual exists in service of something larger. Your fifteen years of service gave you military training, a place in the hierarchy, and a set of physical instincts that civilian life cannot replicate. You learned to move through danger efficiently, because fear doesn't excuse failure.
Quarian Pilgrim	Wisdom or Dexterity, free	Crafting	Migrant Fleet Lore	Specialty Crafting	Your Pilgrimage took you away from the Flotilla and into a galaxy that had no reason to trust you. Quarians are tolerated at best, viewed with suspicion at worst. The year or more you spent away from the Fleet - finding something to bring back, finding yourself in the process - changed you in ways that even the Fleet elders couldn't have predicted. You brought back more than a gift.
Scientist	Intelligence or Wisdom, free	Arcana	Academia Lore	Quick Identification	The fundamental questions - of life, mass effect fields, dark energy, the Protheans, what lies beyond the relay network - pulled you into a life of research. You've worked in corporate labs, university positions, or independent settings where funding was uncertain and curiosity was the only constant. Science is the only methodology you trust completely, which makes you both valuable and occasionally difficult to work with.
Smuggler	Dexterity or Charisma, free	Thievery	Smuggling Lore	Subtle Theft	The galaxy runs on legal commerce and officially sanctioned contracts. The parts that matter, though, frequently don't. You've moved cargo that couldn't be declared, navigated inspection protocols designed to fail against creative interpretation, and developed a working relationship with people who exist in the spaces between law and its enforcement. You know what things are actually worth and who actually wants them.

Spectre Candidate	Strength or Dexterity, free	Stealth	Spectre Lore	Terrain Stalker	The Council's Special Tactics and Reconnaissance operatives answer to no one but the Council itself, receive no public acknowledgment, and operate by a mandate that begins and ends with results. You were identified as a potential candidate - screened, evaluated, and subjected to a preparation process that most people never know exists. Whether you've been formally inducted yet or not, you were changed by the process.
Sur'Kesh	Intelligence or Dexterity, free	Nature	Sur'Kesh Lore	Dubious Knowledge	The salarian homeworld is a humid jungle world of extraordinary biological complexity - ecosystems dense enough that new species are still being catalogued, and a culture sophisticated enough to be cataloguing them. Sur'Kesh produced the Special Tasks Group, the galaxy's most effective intelligence service, and the scientific methodologies that underpin much of modern research. Growing up here means an instinctive relationship with living systems - their structures, their vulnerabilities, and their potential applications.
Terminus Survivor	Wisdom or Constitution, free	Medicine	Terminus Systems Lore	Battle Medicine	The Terminus Systems exist outside Council space and outside Council law. You grew up in a region where medical care was whatever you could provide yourself, law enforcement was whoever had the bigger weapon, and trust was the most dangerous luxury available. That environment taught you to assess injuries fast and treat them faster - survival in the Terminus often depends on being able to get back up before your enemies notice you went down.
Thessia	Intelligence or Wisdom, free	Occultism	Thessia Lore	Schooled in Secrets	The asari homeworld is everything the species has spent three thousand years becoming - prosperous, cultured, suffused with biotic tradition and diplomatic sophistication. Thessia's schools are among the galaxy's finest. Its biotic academies are the oldest. Growing up here means you absorbed a civilization's worth of accumulated knowledge - including the biotic theory that underlies everything from L2 amplifiers to singularity fields. The galaxy looks different when you can read its physics.

Tuchanka	Strength or Constitution, free	Intimidation	Tuchanka Lore	Intimidating Glare	Before the Genophage, Tuchanka was a krogan world of warring clans and fierce territorial contests. After it, the planet became something else - a blasted, radiation-scarred demonstration of what happens when a species is biologically broken by design. Growing up here demanded physical toughness and the ability to project power, because the alternative was to become prey. Tuchanka does not produce diplomats. It produces survivors who understand exactly what they survived.

SHOCKWAVE ◆◆

FEAT 1

ADEPT VANGUARD BIOTIC MANIPULATE

You slam biotic energy into the ground, sending a rolling kinetic shockwave along the surface that topples everything in its path.

All creatures in a 60-foot line must attempt a Reflex save against your class DC.

Critical Success Unaffected.

Success The creature takes 1d6 bludgeoning damage.

Failure The creature takes 2d6 bludgeoning damage and is pushed 10 feet away from you.

Critical Failure As failure, but 4d6 bludgeoning and also Knocked Prone.

Cooldown: 7 â˜ your Charisma modifier rounds (minimum 1).

When a creature rolls the save above, the result for its degree of success is applied automatically (see the Auto-Apply Power Effects setting). Damage is rolled once and shared by every creature in the area.

4TH LEVEL

VANGUARD RUSH ◆◆

FEAT 4

VANGUARD BIOTIC MANIPULATE MOVE

Prerequisites: Biotic Charge, Nova

You combine your Biotic Charge and Nova into a single explosive sequence, crashing into your target and immediately detonating your barrier energy on impact.

Requirements You have an active Biotic Barrier with at least 1 HP remaining.

Use Biotic Charge. If the target fails their save (Failure or Critical Failure result), immediately use Nova as a free action upon landing. The Nova uses your Biotic Barrier's current HP at the moment of detonation, including any HP recharged by the Biotic Charge. If the target critically succeeds on their save against Biotic Charge, Nova is not triggered.

Using Vanguard Rush places both Biotic Charge and Nova on their individual cooldowns.

Cooldown: 7 - your Charisma modifier rounds (minimum 1).

CHARGE UPGRADE

FEAT 8

VANGUARD

Prerequisites: Biotic Charge

Your biotic charge technique has evolved. You may choose one of the following options to improve your Biotic Charge ability:

- Your Biotic Charge distance increases by 30 feet, and its damage increases by 2d6.
- Your Biotic Charge distance and damage remain the same, but your Biotic Barrier always recharges to full, regardless of whether your target succeeds their Reflex save against your Biotic Charge.

Automation: Your choice is made when you take the feat. The extra 2d6 is added to Charge's damage, or using Charge refills your barrier.

Prerequisite: Biotic Charge. Classes: Vanguard.

NOVA UPGRADE

FEAT 8

VANGUARD

Prerequisites: Nova

You channel every ounce of your biotic reserves into a catastrophic release of mass effect energy.

Nova's burst radius increases to 20 feet (up from 10 feet). The damage increases to twice the barrier's current HP at the moment of detonation (up from the barrier's current HP). On a Failure, targets are also Stunned 1. On a Critical Failure, targets are Stunned 3 instead.

Prerequisite: Nova. Classes: Vanguard.

DEATH'S EMBRACE ↩

FEAT 10

VANGUARD BIOTIC

Prerequisites: Charge Upgrade

Trigger: You would be reduced to 0 HP.

You refuse to fall. Instead of going down, you immediately Charge the nearest enemy within 60 feet as a reaction. You arrive at the target's location with 1 HP and your Biotic Barrier restored to full. If no valid target exists within 60 feet, this ability does not trigger.

Prerequisite: Charge Upgrade. Classes: Vanguard.

12TH LEVEL

UNSTOPPABLE CHARGE

FEAT 12

VANGUARD BIOTIC

Prerequisites: Charge Upgrade

Your Biotic Charge has become an unstoppable force of nature. Nothing stands between you and your target.

When you use Biotic Charge, you may now move through total cover as though it were open terrain - walls, barriers, and obstacles are no obstacle to your biotic field. In addition, regardless of the save result, Biotic Charge always restores 25% of your maximum Biotic Barrier HP.

On a Critical Failure, the target is not merely knocked prone - they are thrown half the distance of your Biotic Charge, landing prone and taking falling damage as normal for the distance thrown.

Prerequisite: Charge Upgrade. Classes: Vanguard.

14TH LEVEL

VANGUARD STRIKE »

FEAT 14

VANGUARD BIOTIC

Prerequisites: Vanguard Rush, Nova Upgrade

You have mastered the art of the biotic blitz. Biotic Charge and Nova fuse into a single overwhelming sequence that devastates everything caught in your path.

Requirements None - your Biotic Barrier automatically recharges to full before the sequence begins.

Use Biotic Charge. Immediately upon landing, use Nova as a free action. Nova fires regardless of whether the Biotic Charge target succeeded their save - even a Critical Success does not prevent the detonation. Nova uses the upgraded statistics from Nova Upgrade (20-foot emanation, damage equal to 2× the Biotic Barrier HP at detonation, Stunned 1 on Failure, Stunned 3 on Critical Failure). Because the barrier was just recharged to full, Nova's damage equals 2× your maximum Biotic Barrier HP.

Vanguard Strike places Biotic Charge, Nova, and Vanguard Rush on their individual cooldowns simultaneously.

Prerequisites: Vanguard Rush, Nova Upgrade. Classes: Vanguard.

16TH LEVEL

RAMPAGE

FEAT 16

VANGUARD BIOTIC

Prerequisites: Unstoppable Charge

Your Charge carries such momentum that you naturally transition into a devastating follow-up strike.

Immediately after a successful Charge, you may make one free shotgun Strike against the same target as a free action. This Strike doesn't count toward your multiple attack penalty for the round.

Prerequisite: Unstoppable Charge. Classes: Vanguard.

20TH LEVEL

APEX VANGUARD

FEAT 20

VANGUARD BIOTIC

Prerequisites: Death's Embrace

You are a living weapon, an unstoppable force of biotic aggression at the absolute peak of Vanguard capability.

Charge always restores your Biotic Barrier to full, regardless of the save result (up from 25% with Unstoppable Charge). Nova can be used twice per turn; the second use deals damage equal to your maximum Biotic Barrier HP even if the barrier is currently empty, and does not deplete it. When you use Rampage while adjacent to your target, your Strike deals an additional 1d6 void damage.

Prerequisite: Death's Embrace. Classes: Vanguard.

INFILTRATOR

1ST LEVEL

CRYO ROUNDS »

FEAT 1

SOLDIER VANGUARD INFILTRATOR

You have been trained in the use of cryo rounds. Using two actions, you can modify your ammunition to gain the following features:

Cryogenically-charged rounds that flash-freeze on impact. Your weapon attacks deal an additional 1d4 cold damage.

When Cryo Rounds deal direct HP damage, the target becomes Chilled (off-guard until the end of their next turn).

DISRUPTOR ROUNDS »

FEAT 1

SOLDIER INFILTRATOR

You have been trained in the use of disruptor rounds. Using two actions, you can modify your ammunition to gain the following features:

Rounds that generate a disruptive electrical pulse on impact. Your weapon attacks deal electricity damage instead of their normal damage type.

Disruptor rounds deal double damage to kinetic shields: all electricity damage against shielded targets is automatically doubled.

INCINERATE »

FEAT 1

ENGINEER INFILTRATOR TECH FIRE MANIPULATE

You launch a superheated plasma projectile from your omni-tool that burns through armor and sets targets ablaze.

Choose a creature within 30 feet. It must attempt a Reflex save. Incinerate ignores up to 5 points of fire resistance.

Critical Success Unaffected.

Success The target takes 1d6 fire damage.

Failure The target takes 2d6 fire damage and 1d4 persistent fire damage. The target cannot regain HP until the start of your next turn. Armor Frames hit by Incinerate take 1.5× damage.

Critical Failure As failure, but 4d6 fire damage and 2d4 persistent fire.

Cooldown: 7 - your Intelligence modifier rounds (minimum 1).

When the target rolls the save above, this power's damage and persistent fire are applied automatically (see the Auto-Apply Power Effects setting).

SABOTAGE »

FEAT 1

ENGINEER INFILTRATOR TECH MANIPULATE

You hack a synthetic enemy's combat VI, turning it against its own allies and causing it to attack everything in sight.

Requirements The target must be a synthetic, mech, or drone-type creature.

Choose a qualifying target within 30 feet. The target must attempt a Will save against your class DC.

Critical Success Unaffected.

Success The target is Confused until the end of your next turn.

Failure The target treats all creatures as enemies and attacks the nearest target each round for 1 round. At the end of each of its turns, it can attempt a new Will save to end the effect.

Critical Failure As failure, but the effect lasts for 1 minute. The target also attacks with its maximum damage each round.

Cooldown: 7 â˚' your Intelligence modifier rounds (minimum 1).

When a creature rolls the save above, the result for its degree of success is applied automatically (see the Auto-Apply Power Effects setting).

STICKY GRENADE »

FEAT 1

INFILTRATOR FIRE MANIPULATE

You deploy a high-adhesive incendiary charge that clings to the first surface it contacts and burns steadily, denying the area.

Choose a point within 30 feet. All creatures in a 5-foot burst centered on that point must attempt a Reflex save against your class DC.

Critical Success Unaffected.

Success The target takes 2d6 fire damage.

Failure The target takes 4d6 fire damage and gains Persistent 1d6 fire damage (DC 12 flat check to end).

Critical Failure The target takes 6d6 fire damage and gains Persistent 2d6 fire damage (DC 15 flat check to end).

Cooldown: 3 rounds.

When a creature rolls the save above, the damage and conditions for its result are applied automatically (see the Auto-Apply Power Effects setting). Damage is rolled once and shared by every creature in the area.

TACTICAL CLOAK »

FEAT 1

INFILTRATOR TECH MANIPULATE

You activate a personal light-bending cloaking device, becoming completely invisible to enemies while setting up a devastating ambush strike.

You become Undetected by all creatures until the start of your next turn or until you make a Strike, whichever comes first. You gain the Tactical Cloak effect, which adds +2d6 precision damage to your first Strike made while Undetected. Remove the effect after making that Strike.

2ND LEVEL

HUNTER'S MARK ❖

FEAT 2

INFILTRATOR TECH

Prerequisites: Master Weapon Mastery (Sniper Rifles)

You mark a target through your scope, feeding real-time biometric data to your weapon's targeting system.

Designate one creature you can see within 120 feet as your Marked target. You deal +2 damage against the Marked target with all weapon Strikes, and you always know the Marked target's exact location (even if Concealed). The Mark persists until the target is incapacitated or you Mark a new target.

Prerequisite: Master Weapon Mastery (Sniper Rifles). Classes: Infiltrator.

INCINERATE UPGRADE

FEAT 8

ENGINEER INFILTRATOR

Prerequisites: Incinerate

You recalibrate your plasma projector for wide-pattern dispersion, turning Incinerate into an area attack.

Incinerate now targets a 10-foot burst within 30 feet instead of a single creature. All creatures in the burst make the saving throw. Persistent fire damage applies only to those who critically fail.

Prerequisite: Incinerate. Classes: Engineer, Infiltrator.

TACTICAL CLOAK UPGRADE

FEAT 8

INFILTRATOR

Prerequisites: Tactical Cloak

Advanced cloaking algorithms keep the field stable even through the shock of a weapon discharge.

Tactical Cloak does not end when you make your first Strike. The cloak ends after your second Strike while cloaked, or at the start of your next turn, whichever comes first. Both Strikes made while cloaked gain the precision damage bonus.

Prerequisite: Tactical Cloak. Classes: Infiltrator.

GHOST PROTOCOL

FEAT 10

INFILTRATOR TECH

Prerequisites: Tactical Cloak Upgrade

Advanced field harmonics keep your cloaking device stable through multiple weapon discharges.

Tactical Cloak does not end when you Strike. The cloak remains active until you make your second Strike or the start of your next turn (whichever comes first). You may Strike twice from concealment, both attacks gaining the precision damage bonus. The cloak ends automatically after the second Strike.

Prerequisite: Tactical Cloak Upgrade. Classes: Infiltrator.

12TH LEVEL

ASSASSINATION PROTOCOL

FEAT 12

INFILTRATOR TECH

Prerequisites: Ghost Protocol

You have optimized your ambush technique to the point of lethal perfection.

The precision damage bonus from Tactical Cloak increases to +3d6 per Strike made while cloaked (replaces the base +2d6). Additionally, if your cloaked Strike reduces a target to 0 HP, your Tactical Cloak immediately reactivates at no action cost (once per minute).

Prerequisite: Ghost Protocol. Classes: Infiltrator.

16TH LEVEL

PHANTOM PROTOCOL

FEAT 16

INFILTRATOR TECH

Prerequisites: Ghost Protocol

Your cloaking device can reinitiate automatically when a kill provides the brief opening needed to recalibrate.

Once per encounter, when you reduce an enemy to 0 HP, Tactical Cloak automatically reactivates as a free action. This can occur even if Tactical Cloak is currently on cooldown.

Prerequisite: Ghost Protocol. Classes: Infiltrator.

DEATH FROM ABOVE

FEAT 18

INFILTRATOR TECH

Prerequisites: Assassination Protocol

A critical strike made from the shadows carries terrifying force multipliers that push damage beyond the edge of comprehension.

When you score a critical hit with a Strike made while Tactical Cloak is active, you deal an additional 2d6 precision damage (stacks with Assassination Protocol's +3d6 for a total of +5d6 on a crit). Enemies that witness this must succeed on a Will save against your class DC or become Frightened 2.

When a creature rolls the save above, the result for its degree of success is applied automatically (see the Auto-Apply Power Effects setting).

Prerequisite: Assassination Protocol. Classes: Infiltrator.

20TH LEVEL

APEX INFILTRATOR

FEAT 20

INFILTRATOR TECH

Prerequisites: Death From Above

You have become something beyond human - a ghost, a myth, a phantom that enemies never see coming twice.

The first Strike you make each turn while Tactical Cloak is active is treated as a critical hit regardless of the attack roll result (if it would hit). Your Hunter's Mark bonus increases to +4 damage. Phantom Protocol now triggers on any kill, not just once per encounter.

Prerequisite: Death From Above. Classes: Infiltrator.

1ST LEVEL

CRYO BLAST »

LIFT GRENADE »

FEAT 1

SENTINEL BIOTIC MANIPULATE

You throw a hybrid tech-biotic device that projects a localized mass-effect lift field on detonation, suspending targets in the air.

Choose a point within 60 feet. All creatures in a 15-foot burst centered on that point must attempt a Reflex save against your class DC.

Critical Success Unaffected.

Success The target is lifted 5 feet off the ground and becomes Off-Guard until the end of your next turn.

Failure The target is lifted 10 feet and becomes Grabbed (suspended by the biotic field). The Grabbed condition ends at the start of your next turn or when the target Escapes (DC equals your class DC).

Critical Failure As failure, and the target takes 2d6 void damage and is Stunned 1.

Cooldown: 3 rounds.

When a creature rolls the save above, the damage and conditions for its result are applied automatically (see the Auto-Apply Power Effects setting). Damage is rolled once and shared by every creature in the area.

OVERLOAD »

FEAT 1

ENGINEER SENTINEL TECH ELECTRICITY MANIPULATE

You fire a concentrated electromagnetic pulse that shreds kinetic shields and fries synthetic circuitry.

Choose a creature within 30 feet. The target must attempt a Reflex save against your class DC. Electricity damage dealt to kinetic shields is doubled by the shield system.

Critical Success Unaffected.

Success The target takes 1d8 electricity damage.

Failure The target takes 2d8 electricity damage. Synthetic or mech creatures take an additional 1d8 electricity damage.

Critical Failure As failure, but 4d8 electricity damage (plus the synthetic bonus). The target is also Stunned 1.

You gain the Tech Armor effect: +2 circumstance bonus to AC. If you take 20 or more damage from a single hit while this effect is active, it detonates — all creatures in a 10-foot emanation take 2d6 electricity damage (basic Reflex save against your class DC) and the effect ends. You may also voluntarily detonate it as a free action on your turn.

Cooldown: 7 â^' your Intelligence modifier rounds (minimum 1).

When a creature rolls the save above, the result for its degree of success is applied automatically (see the Auto-Apply Power Effects setting). Damage is rolled once and shared by every creature in the area.

Success The target takes 1d6 bludgeoning damage and is moved 5 feet in any direction.

Failure The target is lifted 10 feet into the air and then slammed down, taking 3d6 bludgeoning damage and becoming Stunned 1 and Prone.

Critical Failure As failure, but 6d6 bludgeoning, Stunned 2, and the target's movement speed is halved until the end of its next turn.

Cooldown: 7 â€“ your Charisma modifier rounds (minimum 1).

When a creature rolls the save above, the result for its degree of success is applied automatically (see the Auto-Apply Power Effects setting).

STASIS »

FEAT 1

BIOTIC INCAPACITATION MANIPULATE

You encase a single target in an impenetrable mass effect stasis field, freezing them completely in place.

Choose a creature within 30 feet. The target must attempt a Will save against your class DC.

Critical Success Unaffected.

Success The creature is Immobilized until the start of your next turn.

Failure The creature is Paralyzed until the start of your next turn. At the end of each of its turns, it can attempt a new Will save to end the effect early.

Critical Failure The creature is Paralyzed for 1 minute. At the end of each of its turns, it can attempt a new Will save (same DC) to end the effect early.

Cooldown: 7 â€“ your Charisma modifier rounds (minimum 1).

When a creature rolls the save above, the result for its degree of success is applied automatically (see the Auto-Apply Power Effects setting).

TECH POWERS

1ST LEVEL

AI HACKING »»

FEAT 1

TECH CONCENTRATE INCAPACITATION MANIPULATE

You perform a deep hack of a synthetic enemy's core AI, fully subverting its combat programming and converting it to fight for your side.

Requirements The target must be a synthetic or mech-type creature that is not immune to mental effects.

Choose a qualifying target within 30 feet. The target must attempt a Will save against your class DC.

Critical Success Unaffected.

Success The target is Stunned 1.

Failure The target becomes your ally for up to 1 minute, fighting as directed. This effect ends immediately if the target takes damage from one of your allies exceeding 10 HP in a single hit. At the end of each minute, it can attempt a new Will save to end the effect.

Critical Failure As failure, but the target also has a +2 circumstance bonus to attack rolls and saving throws while under your control (its combat programming has been maximized).

Cooldown: 7 â€“ your Intelligence modifier rounds (minimum 1).

When a creature rolls the save above, the result for its degree of success is applied automatically (see the Auto-Apply Power Effects setting).

DAMPING »

FEAT 1

TECH MANIPULATE

You deploy a proximity mine that emits a dampening pulse, scrambling the neural implants and omni-tool interfaces of all nearby enemies.

You place a Damping Mine at a point within 30 feet. All creatures in a 10-foot radius burst must attempt a Will save against your class DC.

Critical Success Unaffected.

Success The creature is Stupefied 1 until the start of your next turn (it can use Tech and Biotic powers, but at a –1 penalty to DCs and attack rolls with them).

Failure The creature cannot use Tech or Biotic powers until the start of your next turn and is Stupefied 2.

Critical Failure As failure, but the effect lasts until the end of the affected creature's next turn.

Cooldown: 7 â€“ your Intelligence modifier rounds (minimum 1).

When a creature rolls the save above, the result for its degree of success is applied automatically (see the Auto-Apply Power Effects setting). Damage is rolled once and shared by every creature in the area.

DECOY »

FEAT 1

TECH ILLUSION MANIPULATE VISUAL

You project a photorealistic holographic duplicate of yourself that draws enemy fire and attention away from your actual position.

You create a holographic Decoy at a point within 30 feet. The Decoy mimics your appearance and makes minor movements to appear alive. It has 1 HP and is destroyed by any damage.

When an enemy targets you while the Decoy is active, it must succeed on a DC 17 Perception check (Seek action) to distinguish you from the Decoy; on a failure it must target the Decoy instead. Enemies that critically succeed become immune to your Decoy for 24 hours.

The Decoy lasts for 1 minute, until destroyed, or until you use Decoy again (only one Decoy can be active at a time).

Cooldown: 7 âˆ’ your Intelligence modifier rounds (minimum 1).

DEFENSE DRONE »»

FEAT 1

TECH ELECTRICITY CONCENTRATE MANIPULATE

You deploy a hovering electrocution drone that follows you and automatically zaps any enemy that ventures too close.

You deploy a Defense Drone that orbits you. The drone has 10 HP, is immune to electricity, and cannot move independently (it follows you). It persists for up to 1 minute or until destroyed.

At the start of each of your turns, the drone automatically zaps all enemies within 10 feet of you: each must attempt a basic Reflex save against your class DC or take 1d6 electricity damage (half on a success).

Additionally, any enemy that hits you with a melee attack while the drone is active takes 1d4 electricity damage (no save) as the drone retaliates.

Cooldown: 7 âˆ’ your Intelligence modifier rounds (minimum 1).

When a creature rolls the save above, the result for its degree of success is applied automatically (see the Auto-Apply Power Effects setting). Damage is rolled once and shared by every creature in the area.

DEFENSE MATRIX »

FEAT 1

TECH MANIPULATE

You activate a sophisticated energy matrix from your omni-tool that absorbs incoming damage and can be purged to restore your kinetic shields.

You gain the Defense Matrix effect: resistance 3 to all damage. You can Purge Defense Matrix as a free action on your turn to end the effect and immediately restore 15 HP to your kinetic shields.

Cooldown: 7 âˆ’ your Intelligence modifier rounds (minimum 1).

ENERGY DRAIN »

FEAT 1

TECH ELECTRICITY MANIPULATE

You fire an omni-tool beam that siphons kinetic barrier energy directly from a target and transfers it to your own shields.

Choose a creature within 30 feet. The target must attempt a Fortitude save against your class DC.

Critical Success Unaffected.

Success The target takes 1d8 electricity damage, or loses 10 shield HP if it has an active kinetic shield.

Failure Against a shielded target: drain up to 20 HP of shields; you gain that amount as temp HP (stacking with existing shields, up to your maximum). Against an unshielded target: 2d8 electricity damage and you regain 10 temp HP.

Critical Failure As failure, but drain 40 shield HP (or 4d8 electricity) and you gain 20 temp HP from the drain.

Cooldown: 7 âˆ’ your Intelligence modifier rounds (minimum 1).

When a creature rolls the save above, the result for its degree of success is applied automatically (see the Auto-Apply Power Effects setting).

GETH SHIELD BOOST

FEAT 1

TECH MANIPULATE

You activate a geth-derived shield optimization algorithm from your omni-tool, temporarily supercharging your kinetic barrier.

Your kinetic shield maximum is doubled until the start of your next turn. Immediately set your current temp HP to the doubled maximum. Remove the Geth Shield Boost effect at the start of your next turn and reset temp HP to your normal shield maximum.

Cooldown: 7 âˆ’ your Intelligence modifier rounds (minimum 1).

NEURAL SHOCK »

FEAT 1

TECH INCAPACITATION MANIPULATE

You fire a targeted bio-electric pulse through a specialized omni-tool attachment that overloads an organic creature's nervous system.

Requirements The target must be an organic creature.

Choose a qualifying creature within 30 feet. The target must attempt a Fortitude save against your class DC.

Critical Success Unaffected.

Success The target takes 1d6 electricity damage.

Failure The target takes 2d6 electricity damage and is Stunned 1.

Critical Failure The target takes 4d6 electricity damage and is Stunned 3. Additionally, the target is Off-Guard until the end of its next turn even after the Stunned condition expires.

Cooldown: 7 âˆ’ your Intelligence modifier rounds (minimum 1).

When a creature rolls the save above, the result for its degree of success is applied automatically (see the Auto-Apply Power Effects setting).

1ST LEVEL

ARMOR-PIERCING ROUNDS »

FEAT 1

You have been trained in the use of armor-piercing rounds. Using two actions, you can modify your ammunition to gain the following features:

Hard alloy sabot rounds designed to penetrate ablative armor plating. These rounds add no bonus damage type.

When striking a target with an active Combat Armor Frame, 50% of the incoming HP damage bypasses the armor entirely and is dealt directly to shields and HP.

Remove this effect to return to standard ammunition.

PHASIC ROUNDS »

FEAT 1

You have been trained in the use of phasic rounds. Using two actions, you can modify your ammunition to gain the following features:

Rounds coated in a mass effect field that phases through all defensive layers. Phasic rounds bypass kinetic shields, biotic barriers, and Combat Armor Frames entirely — damage is dealt directly to HP. However, the phasing effect reduces total damage dealt to 40%.

Remove this effect to return to standard ammunition.

SHREDDER ROUNDS »

FEAT 1

You have been trained in the use of shredder rounds. Using two actions, you can modify your ammunition to gain the following features:

Serrated flechette rounds designed to shred unprotected tissue. Your weapon attacks deal an additional 1d6 slashing damage.

Most effective against targets with no active shields, barriers, or armor.

WARP ROUNDS »

FEAT 1

You have been trained in the use of warp rounds. Using two actions, you can modify your ammunition to gain the following features:

Rounds infused with destabilizing dark energy. Your weapon attacks deal an additional 1d4 void damage.

Warp rounds are devastating against biotic barriers: damage to a Biotic Barrier is multiplied by 1.5×. Depleting a barrier with Warp rounds triggers a dark energy detonation.

Remove this effect to return to standard ammunition.

Biotic Charge (NPC) ◆◆

You surround yourself with a biotic field and launch forward in a devastating dash, crashing into enemies with tremendous impact force. You move up to 60 feet in a straight line towards an enemy you can see, so long as that enemy does not have total cover, phasing through any obstacles in your path. That target must attempt a DC 23 Reflex save against the creature's power DC.

Critical Success Unaffected.

Success The target takes 3d6 bludgeoning damage.

Failure The target takes 9d6 bludgeoning damage and is knocked prone. Your Biotic Barrier recharges half of its maximum barrier HP.

Critical Failure As failure, but 18d6 bludgeoning damage and pushed 5 feet away from you. Your Biotic Barrier recharges to full.

Recharge The creature can't use this power again for 1d4 rounds.

NPC version. Its DC is 13 + level + a third of level (the moderate DC for the creature's level), and its damage dice multiply every 4 levels. When a creature rolls the save, the result is applied automatically (see the Auto-Apply Power Effects setting).

Nova (NPC) ◆

You discharge all of your biotic barrier energy in a devastating point-blank explosion, obliterating everything around you at the cost of your defenses.

Requirements You have an active Biotic Barrier with at least 1 HP remaining.

You expend your entire Biotic Barrier in a 10-foot emanation. The damage equals the barrier's current HP at the time of detonation. All creatures in the area must attempt a DC 23 basic Fortitude save against the creature's power DC.

Critical Success Unaffected.

Success Half damage.

Failure Full damage and pushed 5 feet away from you.

Critical Failure Double damage, pushed 10 feet away, and knocked prone.

Your Biotic Barrier is immediately depleted after using this power. Using Nova records the barrier's HP as this detonation's force damage and empties the barrier.

Recharge The creature can't use this power again for 1d4 rounds.

NPC version. Its DC is 13 + level + a third of level (the moderate DC for the creature's level), and its damage dice multiply every 4 levels. When a creature rolls the save, the result is applied automatically (see the Auto-Apply Power Effects setting).

Biotic Charge (NPC) ◆◆

You surround yourself with a biotic field and launch forward in a devastating dash, crashing into enemies with tremendous impact force. You move up to 60 feet in a straight line towards an enemy you can see, so long as that enemy does not have total cover, phasing through any obstacles in your path. That target must attempt a DC 29 Reflex save against the creature's power DC.

Critical Success Unaffected.

Success The target takes 4d6 bludgeoning damage.

Failure The target takes 12d6 bludgeoning damage and is knocked prone. Your Biotic Barrier recharges half of its maximum barrier HP.

Critical Failure As failure, but 24d6 bludgeoning damage and pushed 5 feet away from you. Your Biotic Barrier recharges to full.

Recharge The creature can't use this power again for 1d4 rounds.

NPC version. Its DC is 13 + level + a third of level (the moderate DC for the creature's level), and its damage dice multiply every 4 levels. When a creature rolls the save, the result is applied automatically (see the Auto-Apply Power Effects setting).

Activate Biotic Barrier (NPC) ◆◆

You project a protective mass effect field. You gain a biotic barrier with Hit Points equal to 5 × half your level (rounded down, minimum 5). The barrier absorbs damage before your shields and actual HP. The barrier persists until dismissed. It does not recharge automatically - spend 2 actions to reactivate at full strength. Reactivating replaces any remaining barrier HP with a fresh full barrier. When depleted, the barrier remains as an empty field (0 HP) rather than disappearing; certain abilities can restore HP to an empty barrier without a full reactivation.

If the Strike hits, the mech also attempts an Athletics check to Trip the target as part of the same action, with a +2 circumstance bonus if it Strode at least 30 feet before the leap.

Deactivation Protocol

A FENRIS reduced to 0 Hit Points is not destroyed. Its legs lock and it drops where it stands, becoming an inert obstacle: it cannot act, has AC 12, and is unconscious for the purpose of effects that target creatures.

The chassis stays live. Any damage dealt to it triggers Post-Mortem Explosion.

Post-Mortem Explosion ↻

Trigger A deactivated FENRIS takes damage of any kind.

The power cell lets go in a 10-foot emanation. Each creature in the area takes 2d6 electricity with a DC 17 basic Reflex save. On a critical failure a creature is also knocked prone, which will put most targets out of cover.

The mech is destroyed. A FENRIS taken apart while inactive, or reduced to 0 Hit Points by an effect that leaves no chassis behind, never gets to use this reaction.

Hydraulic Claw ◆

Reach 10 feet

The pilot swings one of the exoframe's clamp arms. Make a melee attack roll: +11 (a PC pilot may use their Piloting modifier instead if higher).

Damage 2d8+4 bludgeoning

The two arms work independently; this action counts toward the pilot's multiple attack penalty.

Vise Grip ◆

Requirements The pilot hit a Medium or smaller creature with a Hydraulic Claw this turn.

The clamp closes and locks. The target is grabbed by that arm until the end of the pilot's next turn or until it Escapes (DC 20). While a creature is held, that arm can't be used for Hydraulic Claw.

If the pilot spends 1 action to Sustain the grip, the target takes 1d8+4 bludgeoning as the clamp tightens and the grab extends to the end of the pilot's next turn.

Shear ◆◆

Reach 10 feet

Both clamps close on a single target and wrench in opposite directions, the same motion used to strip plating off a wreck. Make one melee attack roll: +11. This counts as two attacks for the multiple attack penalty.

Damage 3d8+4 slashing

Shear ignores 5 points of the target's Hardness, or 10 points if the target is an object, vehicle, or construct.

Requirements Neither arm is holding a creature or object.

Heave ◆◆

Requirements The exoframe is holding a creature with Vise Grip, or an unattended object of up to 10 Bulk.

The pilot hurls the held creature or object up to 20 feet in a straight line. A thrown creature takes 2d6+4 bludgeoning with a DC 20 basic Reflex save and lands prone on a failure.

An object can instead be thrown at a creature within 20 feet: make a ranged attack roll +9, dealing 2d6+4 bludgeoning on a hit.

PART III

SHIELD MECHANICS

How biotic barriers, kinetic shields and combat armor frames layer over Hit Points – and how ammo powers cut through them.

SHIELD MECHANICS

BARRIERS · KINETIC SHIELDS · COMBAT FRAMES

Mass Effect layers three depletable defences on top of Hit Points. The module applies them automatically whenever damage is dealt; this section documents the order and the rules governing each layer.

DAMAGE ROUTING

Incoming damage is consumed by each active layer in turn. A layer only passes the remainder on once it is fully depleted.

Biotic Barrier → Kinetic Shield → Combat Armor Frame → Hit Points

TOKEN BARS

Tokens display a purple Biotic Barrier bar and a yellow Armor Points bar in addition to the standard HP bar, so every layer is visible at a glance. Both can be turned off in module settings.

KINETIC SHIELDS

CAPACITY & RECHARGE

A kinetic shield provides Shield HP that absorbs damage before anything else except a biotic barrier. The baseline Kinetic Shield carries 30 Shield HP and recharges 10 HP per turn. Shield HP Mods raise the maximum; Shield Regen Mods raise the recharge rate. Only one of each may be installed at a time.

Recharging pauses for 1 round after the shield takes damage (configurable; Recharge Accelerator mods reduce the delay).

DEPLETION & TAKING COVER

When a shield is reduced to 0, it stays offline until its bearer Takes Cover — it will not recharge on its own. While a shield is down at the start of a turn the module posts a reminder in chat.

OVERLOAD COLLAPSE

A single hit dealing more than 50% of the shield's maximum Shield HP overwhelms the emitter: the shield absorbs only that threshold amount and immediately collapses to 0, with the excess carrying through to the next layer. Big alpha strikes therefore punch through shields rather than being soaked by them.

COMBAT ARMOR FRAMES

ABLATIVE PROTECTION

Combat frames sit between shields and Hit Points and provide Armor Points. Armor Points are ablative: they do not regenerate, and when the frame is fully depleted the item is destroyed and must be replaced.

FRAME	ARMOR POINTS
Light Combat Frame	20

Standard Combat Frame	50
Heavy Combat Frame	100
Titan Combat Frame	200

BIOTIC BARRIER

ACTIVATION & CAPACITY

A biotic can raise a personal mass effect field as an action. Barrier HP is calculated at activation as 5 × [level ÷ 2] (minimum 5), and it absorbs damage before both shields and Hit Points.

A barrier does not recharge passively. Once depleted it must be reactivated, or refilled by spending actions or using Charge.

AMMO POWERS VS. DEFENCES

Ammo powers are the counterplay to the layered defences — each is tuned against a specific layer. All multipliers below are configurable in module settings.

AMMO	TARGETS	EFFECT
Disruptor Rounds	Kinetic Shields	Deal 2× damage to shields
Warp Rounds	Biotic Barriers	Deal 1.5× damage to barriers; depleting one triggers a dark-energy detonation
Incendiary Rounds	Combat Frames	Burn armor 1.5× faster; critical hits add persistent fire (1d6)
Armor-Piercing Rounds	Combat Frames	50% of HP damage bypasses armor entirely
Phasic Rounds	Combat Frames	Bypass frames completely, but total damage is reduced to 60%
Shredder Rounds	Hit Points	Most effective against targets with no shields, barriers or armor
Cryo Rounds	Hit Points	Apply the Chilled condition on direct HP damage
